Les Murray is an honorary doctor six times over and a visiting professor at the University of Sydney (attached to the Macquarie Dictionary). But what he is really known for is writing poems, always varied and sometimes grim, often very entertaining. He will read samples of his poetry with explanations and anecdotes along the way, and will also answer queries at the end of the reading.

Wednesday 13 August 2008
6 for 6.30 pm
In the Nicholson Museum
Main Quadrangle, University of Sydney $10
price includes wine & nibbles
booking essential 9351 2812 or m.turner@usyd.edu.au