Involving two weekends and selected days to suit participants. A real project with real clients and site at Riverwood

The Studio will begin with an analysis of Sydney’s Metropolitan Strategy which proposes greater densities near transport nodes. A Housing estate at Riverwood has relatively low density development overlooking a park...

The renewal project is to turn 150 existing dwellings into 450 dwellings within the height of the tree canopy. The studio will examine the changing demographics of Sydney’s population, housing typologies to accommodate these changes and morphological forms to relate to this middle Sydney location.

The Studio will involve a range of stimulating guest lecturers including sociologists, architects, planners and politicians.
