Established in 2013 through a donation to the Asian Studies Program by Gillian Green, the Doctoral Fieldwork in Southeast Asia Scholarship supports Doctoral Students undertaking fieldwork in Southeast Asia, and its associated costs, that relates directly to their research.

1. Eligibility is confined to Doctoral Students conducting fieldwork in Southeast Asia that is essential to their research.

2. The award is open to part-time and full-time students from all faculties, but their research must be in the fields of Art, Architecture and/or Visual Culture.

3. Where relevant, applicants must demonstrate that they have approval from the University's Human Research Ethics Committee (HREC), or equivalent, for their intended fieldwork before payment can be received.

4. The scholarship may be held in conjunction with any other postgraduate award and will be in the form of a travel grant or a grant-in-aid.

5. The maximum grant amount is $3,000.00

I accept the above scholarship in accordance with the conditions of award.
