Welcome

"Welcome to MECO, encompassing Media and Communications, and Digital Cultures. We offer two undergraduate programs: a four-year Media and Communications degree with an internship capstone; and a three-year Digital Cultures major that can be taken as part of the BA or the BA(MECO). We also offer five masters degrees, all of which include an internship capstone, or a dissertation option for students interested in further research. The master degrees are: Media Practice; Digital Communication and Culture; Strategic Public Relations; Publishing; and Health Communication. And we have a vibrant research culture of students completing higher degrees at masters research and doctoral levels.

Media, communications and digital cultures are dynamic, rapidly changing areas. As journalism moves online, and social media networks enhance connectivity, this enables heightened levels of civic, political and social engagement; and career and research opportunities and challenges are increasing. Doubts about the viability of print, concentration of media ownership in a globalized economy, and the negative potential of fragmented publics, also mean that traditional values of journalism such as the fourth estate, and social cohesion through mass media, are thrown into new states of flux.

Yet these challenges provide fertile ground for practical, critical inquiry, problem solving, editorial ventures and entrepreneurial start-ups for our next generation of journalists, digital strategists, bloggers, editors, game and app designers, website managers, policy developers, media advisors and publicists – and many other media professionals.

Our degrees offer a mix of critical, historical and theoretical learning, together with courses in both Australian media and media globalization. These provide a background to our production-based classes that focus on media-making across all the platforms, and provide opportunities to explore the cultural implications of digital media.

Together with the internships, our research expertise ensures students are ready for the workforce, for further research, or both – it's up to you!"

Media and Communications

At the University of Sydney

The Media and Communications Department (MECO) is a leading centre for teaching, research and public engagement in the rapidly changing media and communications environment.

MECO's highly qualified staff bring industry experience and professional connections, as well as scholarly knowledge to their teaching, so that MECO students enjoy up-to-date, culturally aware and historically informed courses. The Department boasts high-level, fully equipped production facilities, with computer labs, television and radio studios.

Together with its Digital Cultures program, MECO offers online media production and a broad understanding of digital arts, publishing and mobile media.

MECO also has one of Australia’s biggest humanities internship programs, providing career and portfolio building opportunities. We have two full-time internship coordinators to assist you in finding the right work placement and make sure you're ready for whatever career you're hoping to embark on.

MECO is renowned for its friendly, receptive and collaborative teaching and research. We look forward to learning from you, too, and working together.

Undergraduate Program

BA in Media and Communications

The Bachelor of Arts (Media and Communications) is an interdisciplinary degree offered at both pass and honours levels. The ‘media and communications’ component of the four-year Pass degree offers students professional training in the main areas of media production and an advanced education in the history and theory of the field.

Core units of study focus on media production and consumption, the structure of the media and communications industries, the media’s role in culture and politics, globalisation and legal and ethical issues in the field. You explore these areas through a diverse array of disciplinary perspectives and relevant critical theories and develop professional skills in the fields of print, radio, video, online media and media relations. In your fourth year of study, you will undertake an industry internship.

The degree equips students for entry into areas such as print, broadcast and online journalism, international communications, media regulation and public policy, media and public relations and corporate communications. The four-year structure of the Pass degree also qualifies students to apply to those programs in the United States that require a four-year undergraduate degree.

Requirements for the Degree

For the Bachelor of Arts (Media and Communications), you complete the following:

- 192 credit points over four years of full-time study
- 78 credit points in core Media and Communications compulsory units of study (18 credit points from junior units of study and 60 credit points from senior units of study listed in this subject area, including an internship in the fourth year)
- A major from Table A and further elective units of study which may add up to an additional optional major from either Table A or B of this Handbook, or a Marketing major from the Sydney Business School

Digital Cultures Program

The Digital Cultures Program critically investigates the Internet, new media and digital technologies and the roles they play in contemporary society, culture, business, politics, the arts and everyday life. Our units of study explore the interface between emerging new media technologies and cultural practices involving information, communication, knowledge, identities and power.

Students may take individual Digital Cultures units of study as electives or complete a major in digital cultures as part of the three year BA or four year BA(MECO).

Digital Cultures Major

For a major in Digital Cultures, students must complete 36 senior credit points including the following:

- At least 24 credit points from core Digital Cultures senior-intermediate (2000 level) and senior-advanced (3000 level) units of study
- The compulsory senior-advanced core unit ARIN3620 Researching Digital Cultures

There are no junior units in Digital Cultures. Completion of 18 junior credit points, taken from any of the following will admit you into senior units of study: Anthropology, Art History, Computer Science, Design Computing, English, Gender and Culture Studies, History, Information Systems, Information Technology, Linguistics, Media and Communications, Psychology and Sociology.

Senior-intermediate (2000 level) units of study are designed to offer an overview of an area, genre or disciplinary problem, giving you an opportunity to survey and consolidate knowledge and skills in Digital Cultures. Senior-advanced (3000 level) units are advanced level units in Digital Cultures that should be taken in the third year of your major.

Senior-intermediate core Digital Cultures units:
- ARIN2610 Web Transformations
- ARIN2620 Cyberworlds
- ARIN2630 Digital Arts
- ARIN2640 Games and Play

Senior-advanced core Digital Cultures units:
- ARIN3610 Technology and Culture
- ARIN3620 Researching Digital Cultures

Junior MECO

MECO1001 Introduction to Media Studies
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 2x1hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week
Assessment: 1x1200wd essay (30%), 1x600wd essay (40%), 1x2hr exam (30%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

The unit introduces students to the key ideas, trends, organisations and institutional bodies that shape and define the "landscape" in which media and communications practitioners operate. It offers students an opportunity to gain a foundational understanding of the media and communication field in Australia that will be important for placing professional work done in media and communications in a social, cultural, historical, economic and political context.

MECO1003 Principles of Media Writing
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x1-hr lecture/week, 1x2-hr seminar/week
Assessment: 1x300wd news story (15%), 1x600wd news story (15%), 1x1500wd news portfolio (30%), 1x2hr exam (30%), workshop participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit will give students foundational skills in writing for the print and broadcast media. Students will learn the elements of journalistic style, how to structure news and feature articles, how to script basic broadcast and online news, and be introduced to the principles of interviewing and journalistic research.

Junior MECO

MECO1002 Media and Communications Landscapes
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x1-hr lecture/week, 1x2-hr tutorial/week
Assessment: 1x1000wd equivalent presentation (20%), 1x2000wd essay (40%), 1x2hr exam (40%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Senior Digital Cultures

ARIN2610 Web Transformations
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x1hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: 18 junior credit points from (Anthropology, Art History, Computer Science, Design Computing, English, Gender and Culture Studies, History, Information Systems, Information Technology, Linguistics, Media and Communication, Philosophy, Psychology or Sociology)
Prohibitions: ARIN2100 Assessment: 1x1500wd equivalent workshops and tutorial exercises (20%), 1x1500wd report to government/industry (40%), 1x1500wd digital media strategy (40%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
The Internet is a medium undergoing constant change, while also becoming progressively integrated into everyday life. Web Transformations critically examines recent changes in the technology, language, design and social networking on the internet. It introduces key skills in evaluation, strategy, interaction design and writing for the web within a historical context. Beyond the web, it evaluates the implications of emerging applications such as mobile technologies, internet of things and social media.

ARIN2630 Digital Arts
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x1hr lecture/week, 1x2hr seminar/week
Prerequisites: 18 junior credit points from (Anthropology, Art History, Computer Science, Design Computing, English, Gender and Culture Studies, History, Information Systems, Information Technology, Linguistics, Media and Communication, Philosophy, Psychology or Sociology)
Prohibitions: ARIN2300 Assessment: 1x2000wd essay (40%), 1x1500wd art review (30%), 1x1000wd art blog (20%), tutorial participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
Digital Arts explores the ways digital and new media technologies are being used to transform cultural production, distribution and reception in the visual and performing arts, film and popular culture. Students will learn about the changing aesthetic, cultural and technical dimensions of new digital technologies and will develop the critical and analytical tools with which to discuss and evaluate digital art works and the ways that audiences interact with them.

ARIN2640 Games and Play
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x1hr lecture/week, 1x2-hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: 18 junior credit points from (Anthropology, Art History, Computer Science, Design Computing, English, Gender and Culture Studies, History, Information Systems, Information Technology, Linguistics, Media and Communication, Psychology or Sociology)
Prohibitions: ARIN2200 Assessment: 1x2000wd essay (30%), 1x1000wd test (20%), 1x1500wd take-home exercise (40%), participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
Are online encounters different from face-to-face encounters? What is the difference between the real and the virtual? How do online identities relate to offline identities? This unit of study introduces students to key perspectives, themes and debates in the expanding world of online interaction and cultural production including social media, art, games, virtual worlds, augmented reality and participatory culture. Is the term ‘cyberworld’ redundant in a world where online and offline experiences, cultural forms and identities have become increasingly enmeshed?

ARIN2640 Games and Play
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x1hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: 12 senior credit points from Digital Cultures Prohibitions: ARIN2600 Assessment: 1x1000wd essay (40%), 1x2000wd game analysis (40%), 1x1500wd gamed design project (30%), tutorial participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
Computer games have emerged as distinctive cultural forms, with their own aesthetics, design cultures, user communities and academic study. This unit of study uses historical and critical theories on games and play to explore how computer games work and to examine interactive games and use hands-on exercises to develop their own game design concepts.

ARIN3610 Technology and Culture
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: 12 senior credit points from (Digital Cultures, Anthropology, Art History, Computer Science, Design Computing, English, Gender and Culture Studies, History, Information Systems, Information Technology, Linguistics, Media and Communication, Psychology or Sociology)
Prohibitions: ARIN2600 Assessment: 1x1000wd essay (40%), 1x2000wd game analysis (40%), 1x1500wd influence analysis (30%), 1x2000wd essay (40%), participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
Technology and Culture analyses the relationships between technological developments and cultural change, with a particular focus on digital media. This unit of study interrogates the changing conceptions of technology in society by tracing the influence of key works in the critical Humanities and Social Sciences. Through close readings and provocative discussion of advanced texts, students explore the significance of technology in social power, identity, gender, social shaping, class, space, assemblages, actor-networks, experience, thought, time, and the future.

ARIN3640 Researching Digital Cultures
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: 12 senior credit points from Digital Cultures Prohibitions: ARIN2600 Assessment: 1x2000wd research blog (45%), 1x2500wd research proposal (45%), participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
How do people make and use new media technologies? To answer this question you need to know how to conduct research: a systematic investigation using carefully chosen and ethically sound methods. In this unit students prepare a research proposal to improve knowledge about the social implications of the latest developments in information technologies. They build their methodology by choosing a combination of methods: big data analysis, ethnography, interviews, surveys, online methods, discourse analysis, content analysis and/or case studies.
This unit of study provides an introduction to theory and practice of print production and broadcasting, with an emphasis on broadcast journalism. It combines a history of the medium and theoretical analysis of such concepts as news values and audiences, with a strong practical production component. Students will conceptualise, research, write, and present short radio pieces, individually and working in small groups. There is a major academic component of this unit that requires students to reflect critically on radio in theory and practice.

MECO2601 Radio Broadcasting
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x2hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 18 junior credit points from Media and Communications Prohibitions: MECO2001 Assessment: 1x1500wd equivalent 80-sec news piece (25%), 1x2000wd equivalent 6-min video (50%), 1x1200wd analysis in exam format (25%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
This unit builds on knowledge and skills acquired in your media studies, writing and radio units. It extends both production skills (technical and management) and visual storytelling techniques. It introduces students to the history, theory and practice of video production (mainly field-based video), with a strong focus on broadcast journalism. The unit will equip students with practical skills in planning and researching a video production, as well as with skills in digital camera operation, video recording and digital video editing using desktop software. It has a strong production component and students will be expected to produce short video items in groups, and organise their time accordingly. The unit emphasises ‘non-fiction’, information, or ‘factual’ programming: news, current affairs, and documentary, and assumes some knowledge in news reporting techniques. This is an intensive unit combining production and theoretical elements.

MECO3601 Video Production
Session: Semester 1,2 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x2hr workshop/week Prerequisites: 18 junior credit points from Media and Communications Prohibitions: MECO3001 Assessment: 1x1300wd equivalent 80-sec news piece (25%), 1x2000wd equivalent 6-min video (50%), 1x1200wd analysis in exam format (25%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
This unit examines how uses of the Internet, the Web and other online media are changing the media landscape. Students will become familiar with key theoretical and professional issues in online and digital media, and learn to critically analyse online media production. They will also gain practical skills in writing and producing for the web through team development of blogs and online features.

MECO3603 Media, Law and Ethics
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 6 senior credit points from Media and Communications Prohibitions: MECO3003 Assessment: 1x2000wd essay (45%), 1x1hr (1700wd equivalent) exam (35%), 1x800wd online posting (20%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
This unit introduces students to the area of media, law and ethics through discussion of key legal, ethical, and cultural issues relevant to journalism and the professional fields of public communication. Students will be given an introductory survey of the main ethical theories in Western thought to establish a framework within which to examine specific ethical issues that relate to media. They will also be introduced to those aspects of the law that impinge on the work of media professionals.

MECO3605 Media Globalisation
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 12 senior credit points from Media and Communications Prohibitions: MECO3005 Assessment: 1x2000wd essay (40%), 1x1500wd equivalent tutorial presentation/debate (20%), 1x2hr exam (40%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
This unit examines the interplay among the global, regional, and local in contemporary media organizations as well as the role that new technologies play in contemporary formations of global media. It aims to assist students consolidate their critical understanding of the

Note: Available to BA (MECO), BA (MECO/BLaws) students only transformations of existing media, with a particular emphasis on the political economy of online, mobile and digital communications.

MECO3606 Advanced Media Writing
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x1hr lecture/week, 1x2hr workshop/week Prerequisites: 6 senior credit points from Media and Communications Prohibitions: MECO3006 Assessment: 1x600wd opinion column (15%), 1x3min (250wd equivalent) oral feature pitch (5%), 1x250wd written feature pitch (5%), 1x2500wd long feature (50%), 1x900wd equivalent leading Blackboard discussion (15%), participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

MECO3609 Critical Media Practice
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Prerequisites: 36 senior credit points from Media and Communications Assessment: 1x1000wd project proposal (20%), 1x5000wd or equivalent research or media project (80%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit of study is designed to combine skills acquired in practical areas of the course with theoretical issues encountered in the MECO degree in order to formulate and resolve a research question. It aims to assist students consolidate their critical understanding of and engagement with the multidisciplinary field of media and communication studies and the multidimensional field of media and communication practices. By the end of the unit, students will be able to demonstrate an awareness of how critical thinking and media production are capable of mutually informing each other in practice.

MECO3671 Media and Communications Internship
Session: Semester 1,2 Credit points: 6 Classes: Attendance will be required at an introductory lecture and may be required at a program of industry talks Prerequisites: 30 senior credit points from Media and Communications including MECO3603. Prohibitions: MECO3701, MECO3702 Assessment: Students must satisfy the requirements of an internship contract with their workplace, including attendance and performance, as evaluated through a workplace supervisor report, and submit a 2000wd internship journal, assessed by the department. Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

The internship consists of a work placement comprising a minimum of 140 working hours in a media organisation, assisted and supervised by both the workplace and the department. Place-ments include print, broadcast, and online, in journalism, public relations and advertising organisations. Students are required to submit a 2,000-word journal reflecting on and analysing their experiences during the internship. (Special conditions may apply to overseas fellowships conducted as part of this unit). The internship and internship journal are assessed on a satisfactory/unsatisfactory basis.

MECO3673 Research Methods
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6 Classes: 1x2hr lecture/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 18 senior credit points in Media and Communications Assessment: 1x1000wd analysis of a published study (20%), 1x1000wd research questions (20%), 1x1000wd research methods (10%), 1x2000wd research proposal (50%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit introduces students to different approaches of producing knowledge in the context of media and communications studies. Students learn the key designs, methods and techniques of research. They will participate in exercises to develop their understanding of research processes, and build their research capacity through writing a research proposal. Students will also apply their understanding about research to critically evaluate published studies.
Honours Programs

Media and Communications

The Department of Media and Communications offers two Honours Programs:

- Honours in Media and Communications
- Honours in Digital Cultures

The Honours year is an intensive program of advanced study with research at its centre. It allows students to further explore ideas and concepts introduced in their undergraduate degree and develop skills and approaches that will enhance their abilities as researchers and practitioners in media and communications and/or digital cultures. An Honours qualification is highly prized by employers because it demonstrates that you have the discipline and skills to thoroughly research, write and manage a project to completion. An Honours year is also traditionally considered to be the first step on the path to careers as professional researchers and academics, and prepares students to undertake a research higher degree in the form of an MPhil or PhD.

The Honours program is a mix of coursework and individual research, designed to allow students to develop their research skills and to conduct their own research project, under academic supervision. In their Honours year, students develop skills in critical analysis and research methodologies and work closely with an academic supervisor to design their own research project, on a personally selected topic, culminating in an 18-20,000 word thesis.

Units of Study

MECO4011/ARIN4011 Honours A (Theoretical Traditions and Innovations seminar)

MECO4012/ARIN4012 Honours B (Research Methods seminar)

MECO4013/ARIN4013 Honours C (thesis)

MECO4014/ARIN4014 Honours D (thesis)

Session: Semester 1, 2 Credit points: 6 Classes: 2x2hr seminar/week Prerequisites: Average of 70% or above in senior units within the completed BA (Media and Communications) Assessment: 1x18000-20000wd thesis on approved topic (60%), 1x12000-13000wd written works (40%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (seminars) Day
Note: Mid year enrolment is not available. Part time enrolment is not available. Students from other institutions may be accepted into the program, and are requested to provide samples of previous academic work as well as a proposal. Please contact the Honours coordinator, ideally by early November in the year prior to intended enrolment.

Honours Entry Requirements

- 48 senior credit points in Digital Cultures or Media and Communications (minimum average 70%)
- An Honours research proposal (developed in consultation with the Honours coordinator)

Postgraduate Coursework Program

Media Practice

The Media Practice degrees focus on media industry content production in the dynamic and increasingly global field of media and communications. Areas of study include writing for media, media liaison, broadcast and online journalism, ethical and legal issues in the media, and international media practice. This course will broaden your written and spoken communication skills, as well as your production skills in print, broadcast and online media. You will also develop a sophisticated understanding of the media industries, audiences and global media environments.

Career readiness is offered for all aspects of journalism, particularly content production for print, radio, television, online and convergent media. The master’s degree elective internship unit offers you the opportunity to gain valuable work experience before graduation. The graduate diploma and graduate certificate courses provide shorter avenues to update and extend your professional skills, or to explore new career directions. Units of study available in these degrees include: News Writing; Dealing with the Media; Online Journalism; and Writing Features.

Digital Communication and Culture

Digital media are implicated in many recent transformations in culture, communication, creativity, work and everyday life. The Digital Cultures postgraduate coursework programs in Digital Communication and Culture investigate the interplay between cultural change and technological innovations. We take a critical and transdisciplinary approach, framing technologies in social, historical and political contexts.

The Digital Communication and Culture programs are aimed at people pursuing careers in fields where digital media present the greatest challenges and opportunities. These include media, education, museums, web, marketing, publishing, creative industries, social media, mobile media, IT, telecommunications and computer games.

Strategic Public Relations

Strategic Public Relations provides you with an understanding of public relations theory and practice through real-life problem solving and engagement with industry. Our course will equip you with the skills and knowledge in agile thinking, strategic planning and creative campaign design required to engage organisational stakeholders in a media environment within which the boundaries between information, entertainment, image and politics are increasingly blurred.

Drawing on disciplines such as organisational communication, social theory and political studies, the course content reveals the complexity of public relations in shaping identities, dispersing power, and creating knowledge. You will be encouraged to challenge notions of public relations as symmetrical communication and a management (control) function, and to reconsider organisations as sites of collective action rather than bureaucratic structures. Taking a critical approach that recognises that today’s communication professional is at the intersection of debates on how organisations and powerful coalitions create knowledge, you will graduate equipped to apply your creativity in innovation.

In your degree you will explore the various functions of public relations including media relations, relationship building, issues management, boundary spanning, stakeholder liaison, crisis communication and the integration of communications functions while developing essential skills in thinking, writing, speaking and working in teams. Through seminars with public relations professionals, internship placements and industry-based projects you will gain a strong understanding of the potential impact your practice can have on strategy execution in government, corporate and non-profit contexts.

Publishing

The industry-accredited Master of Publishing degree equips candidates with the skills and knowledge required for book, magazine, digital and online publishing.

The degree offers both professional training with direct vocational applications, as well as providing a scholarly approach to the history of publishing, its cultural significance and changing directions. Our units of study consider aspects of book, magazine and online editing; manuscript preparation; print and website production; publication design; and marketing.

This range of study provides you with both practical production skills and an understanding of cultural consumption in theory and practice. The course is aimed at students who wish to take up, or already occupy, career positions in publishing or in other organisations where an in-depth understanding of the publishing world would enhance their professional prospects.

It includes an elective internship unit as well as an extra-curricular anthology project so that graduates are equipped with real-world experience and have the opportunity to develop a portfolio. As such, the master's is suited to those people with little or no knowledge of publishing, as well as those already working within the industry. The graduate diploma and graduate certificate courses provide shorter avenues to update and extend your professional skills, or to explore new career directions.

Health Communication

The Master of Health Communication delivers core communication skills to help students to become effective communicators across health and medicine, public affairs, public relations, community relations, and journalism aspects of public health. Our unique Health Communication program is the most comprehensive and specialised course of its kind in Australia, combining the expertise of the University of Sydney’s Department of Media and Communications with the public health resources of the School of Public Health. With a cross-disciplinary and collaborative approach to both media and health disciplines, our program incorporates media relations, organisational communication, and health communication approaches.

The masters program provides media skills for professional communicators in public and corporate health communications, healthcare public affairs, public relations, community relations, healthcare promotions and health journalism. It also offers a solid, evidence-based education in international health, community-oriented health practice, obesity and other disease prevention strategies, and health promotion. Designed to meet the needs of those already working in, or wishing to enter, the private and public health sectors, as well as non-government and community organisations, our program is flexible. E.g., the Graduate Diploma (1 year full-time) and Graduate Certificate (6 months full-time) courses provide shorter avenues to update and extend one’s professional skills, or to explore new career directions.

Our degrees will equip students with knowledge, understanding and expertise across media and health disciplines, incorporating a cross-disciplinary, collaborative approach. Units of study provide training in campaign development, advocacy, humanitarian and emergency health issues, bioethics, and an understanding of health cultures, policy and promotion. Featuring a well-regarded internship program, students will have the chance to attain high-level skills from work experience while fostering professional contacts and networks prior to completion.

ARIN6901 Network Society

Session: Semester 2 | Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week
Assessment:
1x1000wd online activities (20%),
1x1500wd report and network analysis (25%),
1x1000wd equivalent responses to readings (20%),
1x500wd abstract (5%),
1x2000wd major essay (30%)
Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Is the network the distinctive mode of organisation for the 21st century? The Internet is the paradigmatic mode of decentralised many-to-many communication that interconnects with the century-old telecommunications and broadcasting networks. Geopolitical networks have displaced left/right Cold War oppositions. Social and professional networks extend influence beyond traditional institutional and family allegiances. Network models have challenged rationalist rule-governed models of thought and practice. The interdisciplinary critical analysis of current research, theory and debates will allow students to understand and evaluate the significance of networks in the contemporary world.

ARIN6902 Internet Governance

Session: Semester 1 | Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week
Assessment:
1x2000wd journalism piece (40%),
1x3000wd essay (50%),
1x1000wd tutorial exercise (10%)
Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

The Internet plays an increasingly important role in all aspects of social, cultural and economic life. This unit of study explores cultures and governance of the online world and investigates how politics manifest not only in public debates and policy, but also in the struggle to develop new information architectures and digital ecosystems.

ARIN6904 Mobile Media and Games

Session: Semester 2 | Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week
Assessment:
1x1500wd review and presentation (25%),
1x3000wd critical essay (40%),
1x1500wd game/app concept (25%),
seminar participation (10%)
Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Mobile media and games have been described as the ‘hybrid’ that will interconnect new information architectures and digital ecosystems. This unit of study explores cultures and governance of the online world and investigates how politics manifest not only in public debates and policy, but also in the struggle to develop new information architectures and digital ecosystems.
Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Networked mobile devices and computer games are increasingly prominent in today’s mediascapes, supporting practices of individualised mobility and play. This unit of study critically examines the aesthetics, politics and everyday uses of these emerging cultural technologies. It draws on new media studies, game studies and platform studies to explore themes such as the complicity of leisure and work spaces, new media industries, gamification, playbour and mobile social media.

ARIN6905 New Media Audiences
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: seminar presentation (1500) 20%, essay (2500) 40%, case study reviews (blog) (2000) 30%, seminar participation (n/a) 10%
Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Media audiences are experiencing knowledge, art and entertainment in novel ways as cultural industries increasingly take up emerging technologies. New Media Audiences investigates the range of contemporary practices of production, distribution and consumption associated with digital tools. We examine the sites where audiences experience digital media: art galleries, cinemas, theatres, homes, mobile devices, public spaces, workplaces and online. We analyse how these spaces and interfaces structure audience experience, afford interaction and encourage participation.

ARIN6911 Project in Digital Communications
Session: Semester 1, 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 6x1-hr supervision meetings plus regular meetings as agreed. Assessment: (1x2000wd project critical analysis (40%) and 1x4000wd equivalent major project (60%) OR 1x6000wd dissertation (100%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Students complete a major project. Working with a supervisor, the student may choose to deliver either: (a) a major piece of research for publication in an appropriate print or online academic journal, or (b) a major computer-based project (such as a website, creative work or other information system implementation) accompanied by a critical analysis of the context and objectives of the project.

ARIN6912 Digital Research and Publishing
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 2x2hr seminar/week Assessment: 1x250wd research abstract (5%), 2x500wd refereed reports (20%), 1x2500wd journal article (40%), 1x500wd presentation and report (20%), participation (10%), 1x1750wd draft article (5%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit introduces desktop and Internet skills for conducting research, managing peer review and publishing an online journal. It also addresses the wider social and epistemological transformations in cultural practices of knowledge generation, management and consumption associated with new technologies. It offers essential skills for all students interested in contemporary research and a reflexive view of the historical and cultural contexts of networked digital research technologies.

MECO6900 News Writing
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: MECO4101 Assessment: 1x2400wd news writing report (30%), 1x700wd news roundup and presentation (10%), 1x2900wd journalism skills package (50%), participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This core unit introduces students to news writing skills required by print media, including the elements of journalistic style, the structure of news articles, interviewing, researching, news gathering and editing skills. The unit of study focuses on journalistic news writing but will also be useful to anyone seeking to work in fields that require professional communication skills, such as public relations and communication management, or corporate roles that require strong writing ability.

MECO6901 Dealing with the Media
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: 1x2000wd communication plan (30%), 1x500wd media release (20%), 1x500wd presentation to client (15%), 1x3000wd essay (30%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

Dealing with the Media provides students with practical experience in seeking media coverage for a specific issue on behalf of a non-profit organisation. It requires students to research, design, present, implement and evaluate a communication strategy, and to develop key tactical elements including media releases for distribution across multi-media platforms.

MECO6902 Legal & Ethical Issues in Media Practice
Session: Semester 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: Prohibitions: Assessment: 1x3000wd essay (40%), 1x500wd presentation (20%), 1x1500wd online comment piece (30%), participation (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

MECO6902 will introduce students to key legal and ethical issues relevant to journalism and the professional fields of public communication. Students will be given an introductory survey of the main ethical theories in Western thought to establish a framework within which to examine specific ethical issues that relate to media systems. They will also be introduced to the structure of Australia’s legal system in comparison with other legal systems, and explore selected law, regulation and policy issues.

MECO6904 Dissertation Part 1
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: A dissertation of 12000 words Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit requires students to commence the conduct of their own research projects under the supervision of a member of staff and write a dissertation of 12000 words (completed in the second semester of enrolment in MECO6905). In some cases these projects will give students the opportunity to extend lines of enquiry suggested by units of study already completed for the degree. In other cases, students may have an interest in an area not covered by the coursework programs offered during their candidature that can be developed as a supervised project.

MECO6905 Dissertation Part 2
Session: Semester 1, 2 Credit points: 6
Classes: 6x0.5-hr supervisor consultations/semester Prerequisites: MECO6904 Assessment: completion of writing for a dissertation of 12000 words Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit requires completion of a dissertation of 12000 words, begun in the previous semester. Together with MECO6904, this unit fulfils the degree requirements that students must satisfy to conduct their own research projects under the supervision of a member of staff.

MECO6908 Strategy Selection in Corporate PR
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: MECO6904 Assessment: completion of writing for a dissertation of 12000 words Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit is designed to give students an understanding of the core concepts of public relations and the role of the public relations practitioner in organisations. Students will be introduced to the nature of public relations and its role in organisations, and will be introduced to the range of strategies and approaches that can be used to achieve organisational objectives. This unit will emphasize the importance of understanding the strategies used by other organisations, and the importance of understanding the strategies used by other organisations.
MECO6909 Crisis Communication
Session: Semester 1 Credit points: 6
Classes: 1x2hr seminar/week Assessment: 1x1000wd short-answer essay (30%), 1x3000wd research report (30%), 1x500wd group project presentation (10%), 1x500wd weekly comments (10%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day
This unit of study analyses and examines the convergence of public relations, advertising and political consulting in the history of political campaigning. The unit’s objectives are to demonstrate an understanding of the relationships that exist in the political process between politicians, the media and public relations. It develops student skills specific to the delivery of political public relations and political campaigns. Its focus is the process of professionalisation and internationalisation of electioneering and campaign practices in media-centred democracies.

Postgraduate Programs

Media and Communications Research Degree Programs

The department offers the following postgraduate research degrees:

Doctor of Arts

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)

Doctor of Social Sciences (DSOCSCI)

Master of Arts (Research)

Master of Philosophy (MPhil)

The Media and Communications Department welcomes inquiries about its postgraduate research programs. These include Master of Arts (Research), Doctor of Arts, Doctor of Social Sciences, Master of Philosophy, and Doctor of Philosophy.

Staff in the department are active researchers. You are encouraged to browse through our staff pages to get a sense of our research interests and strengths.

How do coursework and research programs differ?

This distinction is not always clear outside of Australia. Postgraduate coursework programs consist of units of study rather than research work. Students usually attend seminars. Graduate certificates, graduate diplomas and master's degrees can all be obtained by coursework. In postgraduate research programs, students undertake supervised research leading to the production of a thesis or other piece of written or creative work over a prescribed period of time. The research component must comprise 66 per cent or more of the overall course requirements.

In general terms, and with the exception of the Master of Arts and Doctor of Arts/Doctor of Social Sciences, enrollment in a postgraduate research degree requires:

- Prior study in the area of media and communications, or an area related to your thesis work
- Completion of a Bachelor degree plus degree such as Honours or MA that involves a substantial research/dissertation component
- High achievement at distinction level in your previous study

International students will require an acceptable academic qualification equivalent to the above and a demonstrated English language competency.

As part of making a decision on your application the Department will consider whether it is:

- Suitable in scope and standard for the research degree
- A program in which you have the competence to satisfactorily complete the proposed course of study and research
- One in which adequate supervision and facilities for carrying out the work can be provided

Doctor of Arts

Students complete a research thesis of 60,000 to 80,000 words on an approved topic under the supervision of an academic member of staff and complete 12 credit points of coursework.

Doctor of Philosophy (PhD)

Students complete a research thesis of 70,000-100,000 words on an approved topic under the supervision of an academic member of staff.

Doctor of Social Sciences (DSocSci)

Students complete either a research thesis of 60,000 to 80,000 words or a thesis of 20,000 to 30,000 words and a significant creative project under the supervision of an academic member of staff. All students also complete 12 credit points of coursework.

Master of Philosophy (MPhil)

Candidates undertake research in one of the Faculty’s schools culminating in the submission of a thesis of 40,000-60,000 words.

Master of Arts (Research)

Candidates undertake an approved program of study devised in consultation with the faculty, which may comprise: supervised research and a thesis of 30,000-35,000 words; one unit of study and a thesis of 28,000-30,000 words; or two units of study and a thesis of 26,000-28,000 words.

Joyce Nip joined the University of Sydney in 2010 and is a senior lecturer in the Department of Media and Communications as well as Department of Chinese Studies. Before coming to Sydney, she has had more than 20 years of experience in journalism teaching, research and practice as assistant professor and journalist (in television, radio, newspapers and magazine) mainly in Hong Kong. In 2013-4, Joyce was a visiting associate professor at the University of Hong Kong, and in 2004-5, a Fulbright visiting scholar at the University of Maryland, College Park, US. Joyce’s research focuses on media in Chinese societies, particularly the social and political implications of the Internet and social media, and journalism. Joyce is the Postgraduate Research Coordinator.

Dr Penny O’Donnell
penny.odonnell@sydney.edu.au

Penny joined the Department of Media and Communications as Senior Lecturer in International Media and Journalism. In 2009, she was the lead Chief Investigator on a successful ARC Linkage Grant researching on the future of Australian newspapers, resulting in the industry report, Journalism at the Speed of Bytes (2012). The monograph arising from the project, entitled Journalism after newspapers, is in production. Penny teaches International Media Practice, and Media Landscapes.
