Department of Classics and Ancient History
2016 Undergraduate Student Guide
“The Faculty takes very seriously its responsibilities to ensure that its students are ‘work ready’ and able to compete for good graduate traineeships.

To that end we have established a scheme with a range of business partners which include some of Australia’s largest banks, telecommunications, venture capital, insurance, consulting and executive recruitment firms, to give our humanities students the opportunity to undertake a series of specially tailored work placements with these companies.”

Welcome to the Department of Classics and Ancient History.
On behalf of my colleagues and myself I would like to welcome you to the Department of Classics and Ancient History at the University of Sydney. We look forward to sharing with you our passion for the study of ancient Greece and Rome. Students have been exploring the cultures of the ancient Mediterranean here ever since the foundation of the University, making ours not only one of the largest, but also the oldest Classics and Ancient History department in the country. We invite you to join this tradition.

The department is keen to welcome students of all educational backgrounds and with interests in different aspects of the ancient world. We offer a broad array of courses in ancient Greek and Roman history and literature as well as in ancient Greek and Latin. Some of them are aimed for the complete novice right through to ones designed for those with many years of experience in studying aspects of the ancient world. Classics and ancient history has always had the reputation of being an exciting as well as a rigorous area of study. We provide our students with a set of skills that make them highly attractive across the workforce.

Our enthusiasm for the ancient world brings us together. Come and join us!

WHY STUDY CLASSICS AND ANCIENT HISTORY?

No discipline has such breadth and variety as Classics and Ancient History. What other discipline allows you to study myth, art, archaeology, philosophy, history, and literature - all in the one subject?

Our history subjects allow you to study some of the key pivotal moments in western culture. In addition, our classical language subjects offer you the opportunity to study two of the world’s most influential languages. Latin is the direct ancestor of nearly fifty modern languages and a major contributor to the vocabulary of many non-Latin languages (e.g. 30% of English). It was the language of European literature, history, science, medicine, diplomacy and law for nearly two thousand years. Latin is the sine qua non for anyone interested in exploring the past or navigating the present.

What Latin was and is to Europe, Ancient Greek was to the Mediterranean world in antiquity: a common tongue and a cultural super-highway. The study of philosophy, history, drama, lyric, epic, the novel, and oratory not only begins in Greece, but the Greek contributions to world literature are the undisputed models of perfection that every later age rediscovers and emulates. Reading the actual words of Homer, Euripides, Plato or the New Testament is an extraordinary and unforgettable experience.

The University of Sydney has one of the largest departments of Classics and Ancient History in the Australasian region. Studying here offers you the opportunity to learn from world leaders in modern scholarship on the ancient world. Our curriculum is designed to ensure that students receive instruction on the very latest developments in the field. Classics and Ancient History is a dynamic area of study where new discoveries and new interpretations constantly change our understanding of the ancient world. In our classes, you will hear about these ‘cutting-edge’ developments long before they make it into textbooks or the popular press.

Not only is the Department devoted to groundbreaking research, it is also committed to teaching and the student experience. Surveys show that students are passionate about our courses. Many members of staff have been awarded Faculty Teaching Awards in recognition of the quality of their teaching. Studying the languages and history of Greece and Rome can be challenging, but in our Department you are ensured of supportive and inspiring guides.

The Student Experience

‘Studying Classics and Ancient History allows students to explore the history, myths, personalities and ways of thinking of ancient civilisations. Students of ancient history will learn about such diverse topics as Roman law and emperors to Greek religion and democracy. This may involve reading ancient plays or laws, using coins as evidence, or studying the architecture of Athens or Rome. Taking up Latin or Ancient Greek will allow students to master a language and engage with ancient texts, authors and literary cultures. Students will learn in the leading Classics and Ancient History department of its kind in Australia, with academics who are not only eminent scholars in their field, but also passionate, supportive teachers. Aside from learning in the classroom or lecture theatre, the Nicholson Museum and the Gaius Gracchus Society provide other ways of engaging with ancient cultures’.

Ancient History Major
The Department and its neighbours

The Department is part of the School of Philosophical and Historical Inquiry (SOPHI). The Department maintains close and productive relationships with a variety of neighbouring disciplines, including (but not limited to) those of History, Archaeology, and Philosophy. Members of the Department participate in interdisciplinary research projects and collaborations, as well as the teaching of joint units. If you would like advice on how your programme can take advantage of these links, please contact the Undergraduate Coordinator.

We also have very close ties with the Nicholson Museum, which houses the largest collection of artefacts from the ancient world in the Southern Hemisphere and is located just a few footsteps away from the Department. The Museum is regularly used as a teaching space in several of our undergraduate units and for lectures and workshops targeted at the general public. A number of our Classics and Ancient History students also offer their services to the museum as volunteers.

The newly founded Centre for Classical and Near Eastern Studies of Australia (CCANESA) is a joint institution of several entities within the University concerned with the study of the ancient world in all its aspects. It provides a unique research environment and hosts a constant stream of international visitors.

Departmental activities and events

The Department runs a research seminar series where colleagues, postgraduate students, research associates and visitors present papers on new work and exchange ideas.

The Department also assists with running the Sydney Latin Summer School every January. This was founded in 1994 and is now the largest regular Latin summer school in the Southern Hemisphere. It offers five days of classes to anyone interested in Latin, from absolute beginners to proficient readers, as well as seminars and guest lectures. The School’s aim is to encourage an interest in and love for the Latin language and Latin literature, be it Classical, Medieval, or Neo-Latin. For information or to register, go to: www.latinsummerschool.com.au

Please keep an eye out for our two most important occasional lecture series, the Todd Memorial Lecture, in honour of Frederick Augustus Todd, Professor of Latin from 1922 until his death in 1944, and the Ritchie Memorial Lecture, in honour of William Ritchie, Professor of Classical Greek from 1965 to 1991.

We are fortunate to have an associated community of alumni and friends, some of whom have generously contributed to bursary schemes and other fund-raising ventures. We see them as often as possible at talks and social functions. If you would like more information on these events or on ways to help the Department’s many worthy ventures, please contact the Chair of Department.
A Major in Ancient History

About the major

A major in Ancient History invites you to discover the civilisations of ancient Greece and Rome, using their myths, images, inscriptions, artefacts, written history and literature as evidence. You can study topics as diverse as political systems, religion, law, mythology and the world of late antiquity. We offer opportunities to read (in translation) ancient epic, drama and love poetry against their social and historical setting and to trace how narratives have been interpreted and reinvented by later ages, including Hollywood.

The major progresses from foundation units in your junior year to senior-intermediate units treating specific topics in depth, then senior-advanced units offering training in disciplinary method or an opportunity to focus on a key period or theme. Our aim is that on attaining your major you will be able to frame and answer historical questions and be a free-thinking, independent historian of the Classical past.

The world is full of monuments and memories of Classical Greece and Rome. A major in Ancient History equips you to meet them in their ancient and modern setting and to understand their historical and cultural importance both then and now.

Pathway through the major

A major in Ancient History requires 36 senior credit points including at least 24 credit points from core units of study of which 6 must be at 3000 level.

The units of study for the major can be found in the Table A unit of study table for Ancient History in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences handbook. The table shows units of study on offer in the current handbook year. You will find information regarding a full list of units of study available to the major on the departmental website.

Junior units of study (1000 level)

You complete 12 junior credit points in Ancient History to gain an understanding of three different approaches, historiographic, archaeological and literary, to the cultures and histories of ancient Greece and Rome.

Other pathways to an Ancient History major are possible. Because of its close disciplinary affinity, we welcome students who have completed 12 junior credit points of History as well as those who have combined one junior unit in Ancient History with a junior unit from History, Philosophy, Archaeology, Latin or Ancient Greek.

Senior units of study (2000 and 3000 level)

Senior-intermediate (2000 level) units introduce a series of topics which are more closely focused in area and usually entail a particular disciplinary approach. In any year, you can choose to specialise in a field (ancient Greece or Rome), a discipline (e.g. history or literary criticism) or a chronological period. Some units invite thematic comparison between cultures and periods, others require you to consider the impact of the ancient world on subsequent historical situations. All senior-intermediate Ancient History units require you to consider issues in their historical context and how that context might have changed over time. Some units are highly appropriate for those intending to teach Ancient History to HSC level.
At 2000 level, students can follow chronological pathways which provide the grand narrative of Classical History; they can pursue an interest in ancient literature through genre models; or they can study the interplay between the past and the present through units which look at the reception of the classical world.

The department offers up to four 2000 level units each year. Units are repeated on a two or three year cycle. You also have an opportunity to study up to two 2000 level units taught by other departments. These are listed as electives in the unit of study table.

Senior-advanced (3000 level) units entail a close study of either the idea and discipline of history or a seminal period or theme in Ancient History. They will require you to think independently about a set topic and to explore the problems and issues it raises.

Ancient History Pathway

There are many ways to structure the Bachelor of Arts degree. The following diagram provides an example of how students enrolled full-time in a Bachelor of Arts (ie 24 credit points per semester) over 3 years, might structure their degree in order to major in Ancient History.

A major in Greek (Ancient)

About the major

An Ancient Greek major allows you to read, in the original, works of immense cultural and literary significance by the great writers of the ancient Mediterranean world. The study of philosophy, history, drama, lyric, epic, the novel, and oratory begins in Greece, and Greek contributions to world literature are undisputed models of perfection in every later age. Reading the actual words of Homer, Euripides, Plato or the New Testament is an extraordinary and unforgettable experience.

A major in Ancient Greek gives you an advanced ability to read and critically analyse Greek literature. Greek majors study a wide variety of important texts from key periods and genres in the development of this hugely influential literature, gaining an understanding of its themes, preoccupations and complex reflection of Greek (particularly Classical Athenian) culture. Linguistic ability is developed as you progress through a series of units that introduce, practise and then analyse in context Greek morphology and syntax. You may begin either at introductory level, if you have no prior knowledge of Greek, or at intermediate level if you have studied Greek previously to HSC-level (or equivalent). The culmination of the major for all students is in-depth study and nuanced appreciation of works of celebrated Greek authors.

Pathways through the major

There are two pathways through an Ancient Greek major: one if you have not studied Greek to HSC-level (or equivalent), and one if you have. These pathways merge at the intermediate level (GRKA2600).

For a major in Ancient Greek, the minimum requirement is 36 senior credit points in Ancient Greek. This must include at least 6 credit points at 3000 level.

The units of study for the major can be found in the Table A unit of study table for Ancient Greek in the Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences handbook. The table shows units of study on offer in the current handbook year. You will find information regarding a full list of units of study available to the major on the departmental website.

The non-HSC stream:

Over the course of first year, you acquire the fundamental syntactic and morphological rules of Attic Greek. You will study one unit per semester, and reach a comparable standard of linguistic knowledge at the end of the year to that of students who have studied Greek in secondary school to HSC-level. This means that you will be equipped with most of the basic knowledge and skills that enable you to comprehend texts written in Greek.

You can enter this stream either as a first year student (and complete the junior units coded GRKA1600 and GRKA1601) or as a second or third year student (and complete units coded GRKA2620 and GRKA2621). The latter option allows students who have decided to major in ancient history, classical archaeology, philosophy and other fields to gain the competence in Greek that they need to complete or complement their own studies. During your second year, you will be in a class with students who have studied Greek to HSC-level. You will complete the core units, GRKA2600 (Intermediate Greek 1) and GRKA2601 (Intermediate Greek 2). In the second semester you also have the option of studying a 3000-level unit (GRKA3601, The Language of the Greek Bible or GRKA3602, Greek Epic). You will meet some more complex syntactical and grammatical concepts, but the main focus of the year will be training you to read and analyse Greek literary texts. You will begin to explore in depth the literary output of classical Greece.
In third year, you complete a final compulsory unit, GRKA3600 (Advanced Greek), where you receive advanced training in the translation and study of Greek literary texts. You will hone your skills in reading and translation, as well as grammatical and stylistic analysis. Regular exercises in composition will further develop mastery and appreciation of literary Greek. In addition you can choose three other senior-advanced literary units (one in first and two in second semester). In first semester you can take either Greek Oratory and Historiography (GRKA3603) or Greek Philosophical Texts (GRKA3604). In the second semester, you can take either Greek Epic (GRKA3602) or Language of the Greek Bible (GRKA3601) and Greek Drama (GRKA3605) or Classics of Greek Literature (GRKA3606).

To achieve an Ancient Greek major, you need to have completed six units at senior-intermediate (2000) and senior-advanced (3000) level. The units on offer are as follows (compulsory units are in bold):

The ex-HSC stream:

If you have studied Greek to HSC-level, you enter straight into the Intermediate level of Greek study. The core units that you complete in your first year are GRKA2600 (Intermediate Greek 1) and GRKA2601 (Intermediate Greek 2). In the second semester you also have the option of studying a 3000 level unit (GRKA3601 The Language of the Greek Bible, or GRKA3602 Greek Epic). You will spend some time studying complex syntactical and grammatical concepts, but the main focus of the year will be training you to read and analyse Greek literary texts. You will begin to explore in depth the literary output of classical Greece.
In second year, you complete one final compulsory unit, GRKA3600 (Advanced Greek), where you receive advanced training in the analysis of Greek literature. Your reading and translation skills will be honed by weekly language classes and the translation of unseen passages, paying close attention to style and diction, and to literary and narrative technique. Exercises in Greek composition will further deepen your knowledge, mastery and appreciation of literary Greek.

In addition you can choose 3 senior-advanced literary units (one in first and two in second semester). In the first semester of the year, you can take either Greek Oratory and Historiography (GRKA3603) or Greek Philosophical Texts (GRKA3604). In the second semester, you can take either Greek Epic (GRKA 3602) or Language of the Greek Bible (GRKA 3601) and either Greek Drama (GRKA3605) or Classics of Greek Literature (GRKA3606).

In the third year of your Ancient Greek major you can choose from three senior-advanced literary units. In these units, you will read important works of Greek literature and discuss them in detail in class with your fellow students and lecturer, as well as writing a substantial research essay.

Honours in Ancient History

Qualifying for Honours

If you are considering an honours year in Ancient History, it is best to seek early advice on all the pathways open to you and the skills you will need to do your best. Our formal prerequisites are an average of 70 or above in 36 senior credit points of Ancient History including ANHS3635 (or equivalent) AND 12 credit points (or equivalent) of Ancient Greek or Latin.

Students are also required to enrol in at least one Ancient History unit 3000 level. The Honours Coordinator can advise you on acceptable equivalents to our standard requirements.

Ancient History at honours level requires you to have learned at least the basics of the ancient language most relevant to your thesis topic. Normally students are expected to have successfully completed two semesters of Latin or Ancient Greek.

Note that you can still pick up your ancient language as senior units via the units in Reading Greek (GRKA2620 and 2621) or Reading Latin (LATN2620 and 2621).

Please note: Meeting the minimum entry requirements does not guarantee you entry into the Honours program. Honours places can only be granted where there is also supervisory capacity. It is reasonable for a department to decline an application for honours if there is insufficient capacity to provide an appropriate supervisor.

Undertaking Honours in Ancient History

An extra year of Ancient History allows students to specialise in a particular field and to write a major piece of research. The honours year can be the culmination of your study of Ancient History or a pathway to further research in our postgraduate program. It develops worthwhile transferable skills of analysis and critical argumentation. Our program consists of two seminars and a thesis of 20,000 words on a topic decided by you in consultation with your supervisor.
Honours in Ancient Greek

Qualifying for Honours in Ancient Greek
If you are considering an honours year in Ancient Greek, it is best to seek early advice on all the pathways open to you and the skills you will need to do your best. Our formal prerequisites are an average of 70 or more in 42 senior credit points of Greek including two of GRKA3603, 3604, 3605, 3606 plus 6 additional senior credit points of Greek, Latin, or Ancient History. The Honours Coordinator can advise you on acceptable equivalents to our standard requirements.

Our formal prerequisites are an average of 70 or more in 42 senior credit points of Latin including two of LATN3603, 3604, 3605, 3606 plus 6 additional senior credit points of Greek, Latin, or Ancient History. The Honours Coordinator can advise you on acceptable equivalents to our standard requirements.

Please note: Meeting the minimum entry requirements does not guarantee you entry into the Honours program. Honours places can only be granted where there is also supervisory capacity. It is reasonable for a department to decline an application for honours if there is insufficient capacity to provide an appropriate supervisor.

Undertaking Honours in Latin
An extra year of Latin allows students to specialise in a particular field and to write a major piece of research. The honours year can be the culmination of your study of Latin or a pathway to further research in our postgraduate program (though in this case you should also consider doing at least two years of Ancient Greek). Our program consists of two seminars, an unseen translation exam and a thesis of 15,000 words on a topic decided by you in consultation with your supervisor.

Honours in Classics (Joint Greek and Latin)

Qualifying for Honours
If you are considering an honours year in Classics it is best to seek early advice on all the pathways open to you and the skills you will need to do your best. Our formal prerequisites are EITHER an average of 70 or above in 36 senior credit points of Latin including two of LATN3603, 3604, 3605, 3606 plus 18 additional senior credit points of Greek OR an average of 70 or above in 36 senior credit points of Greek including two of GRKA3603, 3604, 3605, 3606 plus 18 additional senior credit points of Latin. The Honours Coordinator can advise you on acceptable equivalents to our standard requirements.

Stories about Greek and Roman gods, heroes, and monsters occupy an important place in Western culture. Greco-Roman mythology is the fount of inspiration for masterpieces of art, music, and literature. This unit examines these enduring ancient narratives, symbols, and mythical ideas in their historical, cultural and religious context. Learn about the manifold meanings of myth, its transformations and transgressions, its uses and abuses from antiquity to the present day.
Senior Units

ANHS2603 Ancient Greek Democracies
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Dr Jelle Stoop Sessions: Semester 2 Classes: 2x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 12 junior credit points of Ancient History or History OR 6 junior credit points of Ancient History and 6 junior credit points of either Classical Studies, Latin, Greek (Ancient), or Archaeology Prohibitions: ANHS2003 Assessment: 1x2 hour exam (40%), 1x2500 word class paper (50%) and tutorial participation (10%) This unit studies the rise and working of democracy in ancient Greece, examining Athens from the time of Solon through the fifth century and into the fourth century B.C. We shall look at the history of Athens and her relation to other cities, and evaluate the evidence of historians and of inscriptions. Athenian political institutions and social history, including the role of the theatre, looking at both tragedy and comedy, the role of other festivals and the law and the lives of the elite and the “forgotten people”, such as women and slaves, will be considered.

ANHS2609 Alexander and the Hellenistic World
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: A/Prof Richard Miles Sessions: Semester 1, Summer Classes: 2x1-hr lecture/week and 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 12 credit points of ANHS or HSTY OR 6 credit points of ANHS and 6 credit points of ARCA, GRKA, HSTY, LATN or PHIL Assessment: 1x2hr exam (40%), 1x2500wd essay (50%), tutorial participation (10%) The legacy of Alexander the Great is often defined as one of military conquest. However it was also an age when scholars revolutionized the way poetry was written, artists found new ways of representing the body in extraordinarily life-like terms and radical new philosophies competed for hearts and minds. From Greece to Afghanistan we will explore a wonderfully diverse and vibrant world that was as much united by culture and learning as it was statecraft and steel.

ANHS2616 Tragedy and Society in Greece and Rome
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Dr Bob Cowan Sessions: Semester 1 Classes: 2x1-hr lecture/week and 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: 12 credit points of ANHS, GRKA, HSTY or LATN OR 6 credit points of ANHS and 6 credit points of ARCA, ENGL, GRKA, HSTY, LATN or PHIL. Assessment: 1x2hr exam (40%), 1x1500wd essay (30%), tutorial presentation (10%), 1x500wd review of performance (10%), participation (10%) Oedipus, Agamemnon, Medea - tragedy as a genre and as a worldview was invented in Classical Athens and has dominated Western culture ever since. This unit will explore all aspects of tragedy in Athens and Rome from the poetry of its language to the theatricality of its staging, but with particular emphasis on how it reflected and shaped the societies in which it was performed, and engaged with those societies' central concerns: gender, religion and politics, war, justice and ethnicity.

ANHS2634 Julius Caesar and the Roman Republic
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: A/Prof Kathryn Welch Sessions: Semester 1 Classes: 2x1-hr lecture/week and 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: (12 junior credit points of Ancient History, Greek (Ancient), Latin or History) OR (6 junior credit points of Ancient History AND 6 junior credit points of History, Latin, Greek (Ancient), Philosophy or Archaeology) Assessment: 1x500wd Textual commentary (15%), 1x2000wd Research essay (40%), 1x2000wd Formal exam (35%), Tutorial participation (10%) Julius Caesar, politician, general, author. Loved and hated, the story of Caesar still inspires strong debate. This unit interrogates the narrative of first-century BCE Rome and Caesar's place within it. Why did Caesar and the 'Fall of the Republic' have such an impact on Western culture?
ANHS2635 Augustus and the Roman Revolution

Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Dr Anne Rogerson
Sessions: Semester 2
Classes: 2x1-hr lecture/week and 1x1-hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: (12 junior credit points of Ancient History, Greek (Ancient), Latin or History) OR (6 junior credit points of Ancient History AND 6 junior credit points of History, Latin, Greek (Ancient), Philosophy or Archaeology)
Assessment: 1x1000wd Textual commentary (20%), 1x2000wd Research essay (40%), 1x1.5hr exam (35%), Tutorial participation (5%)

The Roman ‘revolution’ of the First Century BCE involved civil wars, political chaos, lawlessness and violence against civilians. From it emerged a regime which celebrated peace, political harmony, law, justice and the happiness of the citizens. Augustus was at the heart of this change. This unit explores the transformation of the Republic in his lifetime.

ANHS3635 Historiography Ancient and Modern

Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: A/Prof Julia Kindt
Session: Semester 1
Classes: 2x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: (12 senior credit points from Ancient History) or (12 senior credit points from History)
Assessment: 1x3000wd research essay (40%), 1x1000wd student-led exercise (30%), 1x500wd writing journal/online discussion board (20%) and tutorial participation (10%)

From Herodotus to Robert Darnton; from Thucydides to John Mearsheimer; from Plutarch’s Life of Julius Caesar to Barack Obama’s autobiography. In this unit of study you will compare ancient and modern ways of writing history. You will study relevant key texts, theories, and methods - both ancient and modern - and use them in your own historiographic practice. Brace yourself for an unusual, insightful, and challenging journey from ancient Egypt, via Greece and Rome, to modern France and Australia. Looking at history will never be the same again.

ANHS3636 Hannibal, Carthage and Rome

Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: A/Prof Richard Miles
Session: Semester 2
Classes: 2x1-hr lecture/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: (12 senior credit points from Ancient History) or (12 senior credit points from History)
Assessment: 1x3000wd research essay (60%) and 1x1.5hr exam (40%)

This unit will specifically investigate the back-story to one of the greatest confrontations in the history of the Ancient World: the rivalry between Carthage and Rome. It will explore the extent to which it is possible to reclaim the history of Carthage from the grip of hostile Greek and Roman historians. What will emerge is a vibrant and dynamic civilisation that dominated much of the southern and western Mediterranean for over three centuries.

GRKA1600 Introduction to Ancient Greek 1

Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Tamara Neal
Session: Semester 1
Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week
Prohibitions: HSC Classical Greek, GRKA2620, GRKA1001, GRKA2611
Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly language assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%) and 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit provides the essential linguistic foundation to the study of Greek literature, philosophy, culture, and history. No previous knowledge of any foreign language is assumed and all grammatical concepts encountered will be explained. The unit introduces the basics of Greek through the study of grammar, and is valuable for students interested in all aspects of European history, archaeology, language, literature and philosophy.
GRKA1601 Introduction to Ancient Greek 2
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Tamara Neal Session: Semester 2 Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: GRKA1600 Prohibitions: GRKA2621 Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly language assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit builds on the knowledge and skills acquired in GRKA1600, enabling students to read Greek texts in the original. It concentrates particularly on additional morphology, reading skills and the syntax of the sentence, while also introducing further grammatical concepts and constructions. Grammatical knowledge is reinforced by translation from and into Greek, while reading skills are further consolidated through the study of selected extracts from Greek prose and/or verse texts.

GRKA2600 Intermediate Greek 1
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Peter Wilson Session: Semester 1 Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: HSC Greek or GRKA1601 or GRKA2621 Assessment: 2500wd-equivalent weekly assignments (50%), 1x2hr exam (50%)

This unit consolidates the knowledge of Greek acquired in GRKA1601, GRKA2621 or by advanced study of Greek at school. It involves both formal language study, including practice in unseen translation and prose composition, and the close reading of extended extracts from Greek prose and/or verse texts. Increasing attention will be paid to the literary qualities, style, generic and socio-historical background of the texts, as well as to their grammar and syntax.

GRKA2601 Intermediate Greek 2
Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Prof Eric Csapo Session: Semester 2 Classes: 3x1-hr seminars/week Prerequisites: GRKA2600 Assessment: 2500wd-equivalent weekly assignments (50%), 1x2hr exam (50%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode:Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit builds further on language knowledge and translation skills acquired in GRKA2600, and develops skills in the literary study of Greek texts. It will involve the close reading of extended extracts from classic works of Greek prose and/or poetry, as well as practice in writing in Greek. Attention will be paid to style, literary and narrative technique, and the generic and socio-historical background of the texts, as well as to the intricacies of grammar and syntax.
GRKA2620 Reading Greek 1
Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Tamara Neal
Session: Semester 1
Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week

Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly language assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit provides senior-level students with the essential linguistic foundation to the study of Greek literature, philosophy, culture, and history. No previous knowledge of any foreign language is assumed and all grammatical concepts encountered will be explained. The unit introduces the basics of Greek through the study of grammar, and is valuable for students interested in all aspects of European history, archaeology, language, literature and philosophy.

GRKA2621 Reading Greek 2
Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Tamara Neal
Session: Semester 2
Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week
Prerequisites: GRKA2620 or GRKA1600
Prohibitions: GRKA1601
Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly language assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit builds on the knowledge and skills acquired in GRKA2620, enabling senior-level students to read Greek texts in the original. It concentrates particularly on additional morphology, reading skills and the syntax of the sentence, while also introducing further grammatical concepts and constructions. Grammatical knowledge is reinforced by translation from and into Greek, while reading skills are further consolidated through the study of selected extracts from Greek prose and/or verse texts.

GRKA3600 Advanced Greek
Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Anthony Alexander
Session: Semester 1
Classes: 3x1-hr seminars/week
Prerequisites: GRKA2601
Assessment: 2250wd-equivalent weekly assignments (45%), 2250wd-equivalent weekly tests (45%), seminar participation (10%)
Campus: Camperdown/Darlington
Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit offers advanced study and practice in the literary language of ancient Greek. Reading and translation skills will be honed by weekly language classes and the translation of unseen passages; exercises in Greek composition will further develop knowledge and appreciation of literary Greek. The unit will also involve the close reading and analysis of classic works of Greek prose and/or poetry, paying close attention to style and diction, and to literary and narrative technique.

GRKA3601 The Language of the Greek Bible
Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Peter Brown
Sessions: Semester 2
Classes: 3x1-hr seminars/week
Prerequisites: GRKA2600 OR (MGRK2675 and MGRK2676)
Assessment: 1x2000wd essay (50%) and 1x2hr exam (50%)

Note: Students wishing to do a Greek (Ancient) major or honours are advised to take this unit concurrently with GRKA2601.

This is a unit designed for those who have already completed at least two semesters of Greek, whether Ancient or New Testament. We will focus on extending grammatical knowledge and syntax, in addition to reading selections from a number of important biblical texts. Interpretation as well as translation will play a major part in the unit.
GRKA3603 Greek Oratory and Historiography

Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Tamara Neal
Sessions: Semester 1
Classes: 3x1-hr seminars/week
Corequisites: GRKA3600
Assessment: 1x2hr exam (45%), 5x100wd unseen translation exercises (10%) and 1x2000wd essay (45%)

The histories of Herodotus, Thucydides and Xenophon and the speeches of Antiphon, Andocides, Lysias, Isocrates, Demosthenes, Aeschines, Lycurgus, and Demades are our primary sources for the political and social history of Athens and Greece in the fifth and fourth centuries BC. This unit offers a close reading of historical and rhetorical texts and detailed analysis of the rhetorical and ideological construction of truth in Classical Athens. Language skills will continue to be tested and developed by periodic exercises in unseen translation.

GRKA3605 Greek Drama

Credit points: 6
Teacher/Coordinator: Peter Wilson
Sessions: Semester 2
Classes: 3x1-hr seminars/week
Prerequisites: GRKA3600
Assessment: 1x2hr exam (45%), 5x100wd unseen translation exercises (10%) and 1x2000wd essay (45%)

The works of Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides, Aristophanes and Menander have a performance tradition in antiquity of nearly a thousand years and remain the enduring classics of the modern theatre. This unit offers a close reading in the original Greek of one or more Greek plays and an introduction to the literary, social and performance contexts of the ancient theatre, its language and its genres. Language skills will continue to be tested and developed by periodic exercises in unseen translation.

LATN1600 Introduction to Latin 1

Prohibitions: HSC Latin, LATN2620, LATN2611, LATN1001
Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly language assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit provides the essential linguistic foundation to the study of the literature, culture, history and long legacy of the Latin-speaking world ruled by Rome. No previous knowledge of any foreign language is assumed and all grammatical concepts encountered will be explained. The unit introduces the basics of Latin through the study of grammar and, using a wide variety of short and longer readings form a range of Roman authors, provides an introduction to Latin literature.
LATN1601 Introduction to Latin 2

Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Dr Anne Rogerson Session: Semester 2 Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: LATN1600 Prohibitions: LATN2621 Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly language assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit builds on the knowledge and skills acquired in LATN1600, enabling students to read more complex Latin texts. It concentrates particularly on reading skills and the syntax of the sentence, while also introducing further grammatical concepts and constructions. Grammatical knowledge is reinforced by translation from and into Latin, while reading skills are further consolidated through the study of a wide variety of longer extracts from Latin prose and verse texts.

LATN2600 Intermediate Latin 1

Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Dr Paul Roche Session: Semester 1 Classes: 3x1-hr lectures/week, 1x1-hr tutorial/week Prerequisites: HSC Latin or LATN1601 or LATN2621 Assessment: 1250wd-equivalent weekly assignments (30%), 1250wd-equivalent weekly quizzes (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%)

This unit consolidates the knowledge of Latin acquired in LATN1601, LATN2621 or by advanced study of Latin at school. It involves both formal language study, including practice in unseen translation, and the close reading of a wide variety of shorter and extended extracts from Latin verse and prose texts. Increasing attention will be paid to the literary qualities, style, generic and socio-historical background of the texts, as well as to their grammar and syntax.

LATN2601 Intermediate Latin 2

Credit points: 6 Teacher/Coordinator: Tamara Neal Session: Semester 2 Classes: 3x1-hr seminars/week Prerequisites: LATN2600 Assessment: 1000wd-equivalent language assignments (30%), 1x1500wd essay (30%), 1x2hr exam (40%) Campus: Camperdown/Darlington Delivery Mode: Normal (lecture/lab/tutorial) Day

This unit develops skills in the literary study of Latin texts, and builds further on language knowledge and translation skills acquired in LATN2600. It will involve the close reading of classic works of Latin prose and/or poetry, to be advised in advance on the Department of Classics and Ancient History website. Attention will be paid to style, literary and narrative technique, and the generic and socio-historical background of the texts, as well as to the intricacies of grammar and syntax.
