

COMMERCE CADETSHIPS

THE UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY
BUSINESS SCHOOL

Students enrolled in the Bachelor of Commerce can study and complete a cadetship with a leading business organisation.

A cadetship allows you to gain a formal business qualification while continuing to accrue professional experience.

THE CADETSHIP PROGRAM

Depending on your work commitments, you may choose to alternate studying part time and full time throughout your degree.

Units of study are offered on campus in blocks on particular days of the week. This allows you to condense the time spent on campus completing the requirements of your degree, while also enabling you to develop valuable academic and professional networks and access the Business School's comprehensive range of academic and professional support services.

SPECIALISATIONS AVAILABLE

All Bachelor of Commerce students complete core units of study covering the fundamental theory and practice of contemporary business.

Cadetship students then choose to complete a major in one or two of:

- Accounting
- Finance
- Business Law.

THE CADETS

Our 2011 intake of Bachelor of Commerce cadetship students included cadets from Ernst & Young and PwC amongst others. These cadets are currently completing majors according to their individual interests and strengths, as well as the requirements of their employing organisation.

BENEFITS TO CADETS

Studying the theoretical underpinnings of modern business practice will allow you to make more considered and better informed decisions in your current and future workplace roles.

Exposure to other talented students seeking to succeed in the business world will also broaden your professional networks, to the strategic benefit of your current and future career.

As a cadet you'll have full access to the wide range of Business School support services established to assist you in your academic, professional and personal development. These include workshops and other services designed to ensure a smooth transition to tertiary study, mentoring and peer-assisted study sessions to improve your academic performance, and a wide range of other services tailored to meet your individual needs.

You'll also have access to the Business School's Careers and Employer Relations Office, a business-specific career support service that offers assistance with career planning and development and acts as a link between students and employers.

As a Bachelor of Commerce cadet you'll be supported in your development as a business professional in a comprehensive way, complementing the practical skills you're acquiring in the workplace and greatly increasing your value as a well rounded employee and significantly enhancing your future career prospects.

"As a cadet, you can look forward to building a great foundation for success. You'll get a broad perspective on the market that others don't see, within a constantly changing work environment. Early in your career you'll be working with other organisations and interacting with senior people. A cadetship is an express ride to connect with those at the very top of big businesses."

THE BACHELOR OF COMMERCE

Designed in consultation with industry leaders, graduate recruiters, current students and alumni, the highly relevant and professional Bachelor of Commerce program places strong emphasis on the key aspects of business and the practical knowledge needed by professionals to thrive in today's global business market.

It combines theory with practice to teach you how businesses operate and provide you with the analytical and technical skills to apply your knowledge to address real-world issues as informed business professionals.

You'll gain a comprehensive grounding in commerce generally, as well as in your chosen area of specialisation (see below), and learn to use your knowledge effectively to formulate and implement sustainable solutions in business.

Completing a Bachelor of Commerce at the Business School while continuing in your current role will allow you to progress your business learning at a much more rapid rate than would be possible through workplace learning alone. It will also allow you to apply your rapidly developing knowledge directly to your current role, consolidating your learning and greatly increasing your value as an employee.
