Brief Synopsis of position

As an Analyst with Accenture, you will build core business, technology and industry expertise helping to deliver world-class business and technology solutions that enable clients to become high performance businesses. We are looking for professionals who have an interest in how business processes work and interact. In addition, these professionals need to apply their skills in project and program management while exhibiting leadership in process re-engineering and implementation of process, technology, and organizational change.

The Consulting workforce is made up of three groups: Management Consulting, Systems Integration Consulting and Technology Consulting. This consulting group structure provides outstanding opportunities to develop highly specialized skills that will help you advance your career.

Management Consulting professionals focus on strategy and take responsibility for organizational change and business transformation.

Systems Integration Consulting professionals are responsible for delivering large-scale, complex programs that marry processes with technology to help our clients achieve high performance.

Technology Consulting professionals are responsible for delivering technology innovation and providing the backbone of our systems integration business.
