If you have been sexually assaulted, know that it is not your fault and that support is available. One of the first steps to take is to think about your safety. This could mean going to a space that feels safe for you, seeking medical attention and accessing ongoing professional support. You may also consider reporting an incident of sexual violence to the University or Police, either in person or online (both options detailed below). This resource provides information to help you access immediate support both on and off campus.

Counselling and Medical Attention

Receiving medical attention can often be important, even if it has been a while since the assault. You may choose which services, if any, you might like to use:

Counselling and Psychological Services (CAPS)
Provides free one-on-one counselling if you have survived sexual assault and helps connect you with relevant support options.
Level 5, Jane Foss Russell Building, City Road, University of Sydney
9am–4pm (Mon–Fri)
T: 02 8627 8433
T: 1800 SYD HLP (1800 793 457), option 2, then option 2 again, to book an appointment with CAPS

RPA Sexual Assault Service (24–Hour Service)

Assistance with Reporting

The University of Sydney does not require you to report an assault if you do not wish to, and will help you access support services and accommodations as needed. It is your choice if you wish to report an assault to the Police and/or the University, or neither.

New South Wales Police
Whether the assault took place on or off campus, you can make a report to your local Police Station. Reporting does not guarantee court proceedings will occur. The New South Wales Police Force (NSWPF) provides two ways for survivors to report a sexual assault.
1. The first option, is to contact your nearest Police Station and make a formal complaint. A Police Officer will obtain a version of the offence in the form of a statement and arrange medical/counselling support. This may lead to a criminal investigation.
2. The second option, if you decide not to formally report, is to complete the Sexual Assault Reporting Options (SARO) questionnaire. You can choose to provide your details or report anonymously. It is important to note that with the second option you are not making a formal complaint to police to initiate a criminal investigation.

Completed questionnaires can be sent via post or email: Sexual Assault Reporting Options, Sex Crimes Squad State Crime Command New South Wales Police Force Locked Bag 5102, Parramatta NSW 2124

Emergency Department
The forensic evidence of an assault will dissipate over time. It is best to attend a hospital or medical centre as soon as possible after an assault to collect evidence and test for STIs. In NSW, evidence can be collected ‘just in case’, without needing to decide at that time whether you want to continue to make a police report or not.

University of Sydney Campus Security
If an assault has taken place on campus, Campus Security are able to take a report and provide advice on the best course of action.
T: 1800 SYD HLP (1800 793 457), option 1
T: (02) 9351 3333 (Emergencies)

Student Affairs Unit
If the assault was committed by a staff member or student, and it occurred on or, in certain circumstances, off campus, the case can be brought to the Student Affairs Unit, where trained staff will work with you on support, reporting, and investigation.
T: 1800 SYD HLP (1800 793 457), option 2, then option 1
