Internationalising Learning and Teaching in Academic Settings
Engagement, Collaboration & Sustainability

Monday 23 November 2009 at The University of Sydney

As part of our commitment to internationalisation, the Faculty of Education and Social Work at the University of Sydney invites colleagues (staff and students) from all disciplines to share ideas with us in this one-day colloquium.

Internationalisation is a dynamic and complex process and interpretations are varied. In this thought-provoking colloquium we will look at some of the more practical elements related to learning and teaching in academic settings, including:

- working with all our students within an internationalised framework
- internationalising classrooms and curricula to embrace all peoples
- understanding the richness of intercultural communication
- exploring ways in which the curriculum can respond to diversities such as gender, race, varying abilities and poverty within a framework of internationalisation, and
- forging partnerships and relationships across cultures and societies.

Keynote Speaker: Hans de Wit, International higher education consultant, The Netherlands

Call for Abstracts opening 15 July 2009

Registration fee: $50 (per person, GST inclusive)

For more information on the call for abstracts or registration visit www.proflearn.edsw.usyd.edu.au/conferences/2009 and follow the calendar link to the colloquium web page.

General enquiries
Britt Arnaud
Division of Professional Learning
T: +61 2 9351 8521
E: b.arnaud@edfac.usyd.edu.au