Embedding ICT in Stages 3, 4 & 5
Some fresh ideas for the classroom

Friday 12 September 2008, 9am–4pm
Education Building, the University of Sydney, Camperdown

CONTENT & FORMAT
This course plans to extend current use of ICT both inside and outside the classroom to provide valuable and challenging learning experiences for students whilst meeting set outcomes. Through a practical, hands-on learning approach the course will cover:

• the ‘whys’ and ‘wherefores’ – the value of embedding ICT into the curriculum
• identifying personal strengths and weaknesses in this area, and sharing successes and failures
• building on success – identifying good practices, thinking outside the square
• being practical – creating an exciting new learning activity relevant to your class.

PRESENTER
Alexandra Hugman is a joint appointment between the Faculty of Science and the Faculty of Education and Social Work at the University of Sydney. She has worked in science education as a secondary teacher and university lecturer and has actively contributed to the professional development of secondary teachers through workshop presentations and journal articles in the UK and Australia. Alexandra is also Director of UniServe Science, an online resource for science teachers.

FEES
Per person, GST inclusive
