Mentoring for Early Career Teachers

Introductory Workshop
Friday 13 June or Tuesday 18 November 2008

Advanced Workshop
Friday 25 July or Tuesday 18 November 2008

8.30am–4pm ♦ Education Building, the University of Sydney, Camperdown

INTRODUCTORY WORKSHOP
Participants will explore and discuss issues concerning early career teachers and what it means to be a quality mentor, including:

• research about the needs and experiences of beginning teachers
• a critical overview of the literature about mentoring in primary and secondary school contexts
• issues relating to mentoring and supervision
• the important role of induction.

Case studies written by early career teachers will be used to analyse the issues in specific contexts.

Academic Coordinator: Dr Tony Loughland

ADVANCED WORKSHOP
Participants will be involved in authoring a range of case study materials for use with mentees and aspiring mentors. The workshop is intended to be very practical and action based. Participants are asked to bring issues and dilemmas they have faced or are facing, either personally or vicariously, in their current setting. After initial discussion a number of these will be used for analysis, workshopping, and finally for writing up. (Participants should have completed Mentoring for Early Career Teachers or a similar program)

Academic Coordinators: Associate Professor David Smith and Associate Professor Robyn Ewing

FEES
Per person, GST inclusive. Includes morning tea and lunch.

Single workshop: Individual - $185 / Group - $175
Both workshops: Individual - $370 / Group - $350

(Group rates apply to two or more from the same school or organisation – registration forms must be submitted together)
