Invitation from the chairs...

Sydney Convention and Exhibition Centre

The International Conference on Advances in Structures: Steel, Concrete, Composite and Aluminium (ASSCCA '03) is a result of the union of the 5th International Conference on Steel and Aluminium Structures (ICSAS) which was scheduled to be organised by The University of Sydney and the 7th International Conference on Steel and Composite Structures (ASCCS) which was scheduled to be organised by The University of New South Wales at the same time. These two universities, which are the largest in Sydney and two of the leading universities in Australia, are pleased to work together to produce the combined conference. The two Civil Engineering Departments of these two universities have a long history in structural engineering research of the highest standard and so it is only fitting that the combined conference is being organised by these two departments.

The conference program is wide ranging and covers most areas of structural engineering with an emphasis on steel structures and concrete composite structures. Over 250 papers will be presented from authors from over 40 countries. The keynote papers cover areas of great interest including composite design, fire engineering, light gauge construction, advanced structural analysis in modern steel design and concrete filled tubes.

The venue for the conference is the Powerhouse Museum in the Darling Harbour area of Sydney, which is a world renowned tourist area with many fine museums, restaurants and hotels. The area is attractive for visitors and the conference dinner will be held at the Dockside Restaurant, Cockle Bay Wharf, within a short walk of the hotels. Other attractions of the conference include a harbour cruise and optional tours to the picturesque Hunter Valley wineries and the famous Sydney Harbour Bridge Climb.

Sydney is renowned for its hospitality, which was on show for all during the Sydney 2000 Olympics. We welcome you all to Sydney and to the conference, and hope that you will enjoy your stay with us as much as we enjoy living in Sydney. Judging by the standard of papers to be presented from world experts in structural engineering research, the conference promises to be a memorable and enjoyable occasion.
