

2012 Sydney Festival internships

The University of Sydney is a leadership partner for the 2012 Sydney Festival, and is offering Sydney students exclusive internship positions.

Position Description - Front-end developer

The Sydney Festival needs someone with HTML, CSS & JavaScript knowledge who can turn visual designs into animated browser magic. Your primary responsibility will be figuring out how to pull in a multitude of real-time data to display on a variety of screens.

The successful candidate will work under the mentorship of Cameron Adams, who is a former Google search visualisation expert.

This role is for one day per week from now until January, with some flexibility available. To apply send a one page CV outlining your coding skills, interests and experiences and your current area of study to Kate Dezarnaulds at Sydney Festival kate.dezarnaulds@sydneyfestival.org.au.

Interviews will be held at Sydney Festival on Thursday 10 November for all shortlisted candidates.
