Thinking Space Lunchtime Seminar Series

Program 2016, Semester 1
13:00 -14:00 | Madsen Conference Room 449

Wednesday March 23rd
Melissa McCullough (Geosciences post-grad) | Implementing green economy agriculture in Ghana: The role of agricultural institutions
Dr Dan Harrison (Geosciences) | Ocean Fertilisation: An idea worth pursuing or not?

Wednesday April 6th
Prof. Kanokwan Manoram (Ubon Rachathani University) | Lives and land at Isan frontiers in the Mekong context

Wednesday April 13th
Dr Denton Callander (UNSW) | The geographies of sex, infection and risk: Harnessing passive health surveillance data in the service of responsive sexual health epidemiology (Room 336)

Wednesday April 20th
Dr Stephen Schweinsberg (UTS) | Sustainable tourism marketing in national parks: Oxymoron or pathway to the future?

Wednesday April 27th
Danny Marks (Geosciences post-grad) | Circuits of Power: Environmental Injustice from Bangkok’s Shopping Malls to Hydropower Dams in Laos
Ming Li Yong (Geosciences post-grad) | Transboundary community-based responses and resistance to mainstream hydropower dams in the Lower Mekong Basin

Wednesday May 4th
Assoc. Prof Kurt Iveson (Geosciences) & Prof. Robyn Dowling (USYD) | Digital disruptions and transport

Wednesday May 11th
Xiao Jiang Yu (Geosciences) | The western development strategy and environment in southwest China: a case of Guizhou

Wednesday May 18th
Prof. Bill Pritchard (Geosciences) | Should we aspire to a society that is food secure, or a society of food-sovereign consumers?

Wednesday May 25th
Kirsten Jenkins (University of St Andrews) | What is energy justice? Lessons from the nuclear fuel cycle in Canada, the UK and Australia

Wednesday June 1st
Leonardo Valenzuela (Geosciences post-grad) | Moralscapes of the Anthropocene
Billy Haworth (Geosciences post-grad) | Assessing the potential, application, & implications of volunteered geographic information in disaster risk reduction

Wednesday June 8th
Alistair Sisson (Geosciences post-grad) | Night-Time Economy stigmatisation: a case study of Northbridge, Western Australia

Wednesday June 15th TBA

School of Geosciences

Thinking Space is the Geography Seminar Series of the School of Geosciences, University of Sydney.

The seminar is open to everyone interested in current innovations in geographical research and cutting edge trends in socio-spatial theory.

For more information contact Mark Vicol mark.vicol@sydney.edu.au