Speech pathologists at The University of Sydney would like to talk to parents of preschool-aged children

- Has your child seen a speech pathologist for their speech in the last 12 months?
- Are you concerned about how your child uses speech sounds?
- Is your child’s speech difficult to understand?

If you answered yes to one or more of the above questions, and your child is between the ages of 3 and 6, you may be eligible to take part in a study looking at parents’ experiences and preferences of speech pathology services for children with speech sound difficulties.

WHAT IS INVOLVED?
- Attend a 60 minute interview at The University of Sydney, Cumberland Campus, Lidcombe or at your home
- You will be asked questions about your experiences and/or expectations of speech pathology intervention
- In the three weeks following the interview, you will be asked to read over the transcript of what you spoke about in the interview (this should take less than 30 minutes)
- Your responses will, with your permission, be used in research aimed at making treatment for speech sound disorders more family friendly
