

Application — LAWS3465/5165 Sydney Law Review student editorial committee 2012

LAWS3465/5165 Sydney Law Review is a skills based unit with capped enrolments. Application is a competitive process based on academic merit, team skills, organisational ability and writing and editing ability. You must complete this application form to be considered.

Note that it may be necessary to undertake some work outside of semester. Students will be expected to attend the following briefing sessions:

Semester One: Tuesday 24 January 2012 at 1:00pm

Semester Two: Thursday 26 July 2012 at 1:00pm

Your application will be considered by the Review's Editor, Associate Professor David Rolph, who will decide which students are to be offered a place in the subject.

Name:	SID:
Term address:
Phone:
Email:
Vacation address:
I am applying for: Semester one / Semester two (mark one or both)

Please attach the following to this application:

- a copy of a piece of your academic writing; and
- a copy of your resumé.

You should also provide a brief statement detailing your reasons for applying to enrol in LAWS3465/5165, any relevant publishing experience that you have, and any professional or other factors that you would like to be considered by the Editor in support of your application.

Submitting your application

Please submit your application to Justine Bashford, Law Publishing Unit, Faculty of Law (full details are contained in the footer of this application form) by Friday 9 December 2011.