STUDY AT
SYDNEY LAW SCHOOL
2012

THE UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY

“I can often be surprised by how something in my media or politics studies will be further illuminated, or even challenged, by what I’m learning in my law lectures. Studying law often feels like I’m using a whole different side of my brain, exercising a level of critical thinking that will hopefully open doors for me in the future.”

WELCOME FROM THE DEAN

Welcome to the Sydney Law School and to this Guide on the Undergraduate program. Let me tell you a little about the aims that my colleagues and I share. Above all else, we strive to provide a world-class legal education that prepares you for the global and international environment in which you will provide legal advice. It is no longer enough to understand the legal system in your own country. The challenges posed by global warming require international solutions; national trade measures must comply with the rules of the WTO and international trade agreements; intellectual property rights need protection both nationally and globally; the jurisdictional reach of criminal laws extend to the acts of the armed forces overseas and also to the international activities of directors of nationally based corporations.

Lawyers need international and comparative legal training to respond to these increasingly global problems. Our task at the Sydney Law School is to provide you with the best possible legal skills to respond to these issues.

Established in 1855, the Sydney Law School has made a significant contribution to the Australian judiciary, politics and public life. Many of its graduates have become leaders in their fields including Prime Ministers of Australia, a President of the World Bank, and Chief Justices of the High Court of Australia and the Supreme Court of New South Wales. The Sydney Law School is notable for its strong links to the practicing profession, with barristers, judges and solicitors giving lectures in core legal subjects. The Law School attracts excellent students, both from Australia and overseas, to its programs and has an internationally respected faculty of scholars.

Our building on the main campus of the University of Sydney is 10 minutes from the centre of the city. We are able to offer exciting learning opportunities as we consolidate our position as one of the world's premier Law Schools. Our light-filled building offers superior teaching facilities and a dedicated moot court, mediation and library facilities that are among the best available globally.

Despite our 'state of the art' building, we know that bricks and mortar do not make a law school. The special strengths of the Sydney Law School are its high calibre student community, its internationally recognised academic staff and research, and the special contribution made by the legal profession to the teaching program.

There has never been a greater demand for legal advice and innovative approaches to problem solving than today. But you might ask... what skills will a law degree provide for future practice? A law degree develops skills of analysis, research, writing and advocacy and prepares students to move with confidence across national boundaries.

At Sydney Law School you will learn about the doctrine or jurisprudence of the law and its fundamental structures. However, the most valuable skills you will acquire are the ability to think originally, creatively and logically so as to advise your clients to resolve legal issues in ways that are both ethical and principled.

Legal studies open up many opportunities. While you might choose to practice as a barrister or solicitor, our graduates also become corporate counsel, government policy advisors, teachers, business executives, novelists, journalists and artists.

Many graduates work with international organisations, such as the United Nations or the World Bank, or with pro-bono legal services. Indeed, we believe that over 50 per cent of our law graduates do not practice in the traditional legal profession.

I hope you find this Guide helpful in deciding upon your education at the Sydney Law School, an education that is both intellectually stimulating and rewarding.

Best wishes,

Professor Gillian Triggs
Dean of Sydney Law School

THE SYDNEY LLB

The Sydney Bachelor of Laws (LLB), much like the legal profession and the practice of law, has undergone a transformation since its inception. Inaugurated in 1855, alongside the University of Sydney's only other disciplines at the time: Arts and Medicine, the Sydney Law School did not deliver its LLB until 1865, 25 years before the Sydney Law School itself became official by virtue of its physical location in downtown Sydney. The first cohort consisted of 13 students. The Sydney LLB now caters for approximately 1,700 students each year, with the total number of annual graduates at around 400.

The first Sydney LLB required students to complete Civil and International Law; Constitutional History, including the Constitutional Law of England, and finally the General Law of England. Today, the Sydney LLB still accommodates both Constitutional Law and International Law, while incorporating an ever-growing array of specialist elective units of study including Environmental Law, Medical Law, Intellectual Property and Media Law.

The Sydney LLB has endured innumerable curriculum changes in order to adhere to the academic demands of the practice of law. From its delivery as a five year program in combination with the University of Sydney's Bachelor of Arts (BA) in the late nineteenth century to arguably its most significant curriculum review in the late 1980s, where the LLB itself experienced a reduction from four years to three, to the most recent changes to the structure and content of both its compulsory and elective program.

Throughout its transformation, the reputation of the Sydney LLB has remained intact. Since 2000, the Sydney LLB has arguably been Australia's most sought after law degree. It offers you the opportunity to study law in combination with the University of Sydney's most comprehensive and challenging degrees in Arts, Commerce, Engineering or Science through the Combined Law program.

The Sydney LLB gives you a variety of admission requirements, from direct entry via secondary education to tertiary transfer to special admission entry to elite performance. Entry via a particular admission scheme results in a place in law for you at Sydney. The degree's content and your employment prospects upon graduation are identical.

The Sydney LLB is international in focus and global in perspective. It is the only Australia law degree that requires you to complete two compulsory units in international law. Its expansive elective program in this field allows you to undertake specialised study at an undergraduate level in international human rights, public and private international law and foreign law.

The Sydney LLB is designed to provide a legal education that is not only challenging and rewarding but one that equips you for the demands of the 21st century. It rewards you with a high level of English proficiency while enhancing both your mind and skill sets through its demanding assessment regime and interactive teaching approach.

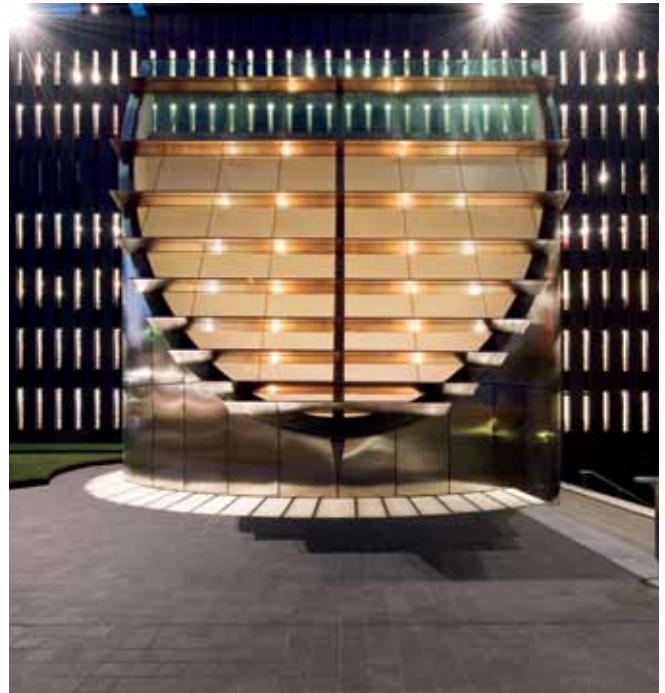

In short, the Sydney LLB aims to be your definitive legal tertiary qualification, on a national and international level.

SYDNEY LAW SCHOOL'S NEW LAW BUILDING

One hundred and eighteen years 'downtown' and thousands of hours of research and teaching later, delivering many of the most respected and influential names in justice, business, politics and academia, the Sydney Law School embarked on an exciting new phase upon its move to the heart of the University's beautiful Camperdown Campus.

The new Law School is a flagship building, creating a new gateway to the University from the city via Victoria Park and representing a new era for law teaching at The University of Sydney. It provides prestigious and well-equipped accommodation as befits one of Australia's leading law schools and offers the highest quality teaching, learning, and research facilities for students and staff.

The main building consists of four levels and accommodates the academic and administrative staff, together with a range of research centres and institutes. It incorporates collaborative spaces, meeting and conference rooms. There are a total of 23 teaching spaces within the precinct ranging from 300 and 100 seat lecture theatres, through to 60, 56, and 24 seat seminar facilities to suit a wide range of teaching requirements. It also accommodates a Moot Court facility, the Law Library and a spacious Forecourt.

COMBINED LAW

Unlike most Combined Law programs, The Sydney Combined Law degree gives you a choice. You can choose to study the Sydney LLB alongside your preferred partner degree, be it in Arts, Commerce, International & Global Studies or Science for instance. There is no separate admission requirement for each combination. If you gain entry to Combined Law at Sydney, you are free to select your preferred combination with law.

Another unique feature of the Sydney Combined Law degree concerns its structure. It is organised in such a manner to permit you to study your partner degree first. At the same time however, you can study the equivalent of your first year of law. In turn, you can actually finish two x three year degrees in one year less.

Finally, you can graduate with both your degrees separately. As a student and graduate of both faculties, you can receive the award of each degree in respective ceremonies. Most students graduate with their first degree in the fourth year of their studies and then with their law degree after their final year.

The following combinations are available:

ARTS/LAW

BACHELOR OF ARTS (BA)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

The first combined degree program at the University of Sydney, Arts/Law enables you to study one of the University of Sydney's foundation degrees with the Sydney LLB. Recognised as one of the best humanities faculties in the world, the Faculty of Arts & Social Sciences at the University of Sydney gives you the opportunity to select a major from one of the University of Sydney's largest subject area offerings at an undergraduate level. From core disciplines such as English and History to specialist fields including Government and International Relations to Linguistics to diverse areas such as Performance Studies and Anthropology, the Sydney BA allows you to study at arguably Australia's finest Arts Faculty.

You study the BA over three years and complete the equivalent of the first year of the LLB at the same time. In years four and five, you complete the remaining compulsory and elective units of the LLB respectively. You complete a major area of study in the BA. However, in order to graduate with the BA, you must complete all first year LLB units of study. If you wish to complete Honours, you must do so in your fourth year of study, deferring your remaining law units until your fifth year of study.

The diagram below demonstrates the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Arts/Law combination:

ARTS MEDIA & COMMUNICATIONS/LAW

BACHELOR OF ARTS (MEDIA & COMMUNICATIONS) (BA - MECO)/BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

Introduced in 2000, the Bachelor of Arts (Media & Communications) (BA – MECO) is one of the few Communication degrees that permit a second major with an Arts discipline. Specifically, you undergo professional training in media and communications by practical experience in the fields of print, radio, television, online media and media relations alongside a major area of study in the Faculty of Arts & Social Sciences. You can complete two degrees in 6 years of full-time study, whereas it would normally take up to 7 years to separately complete both degrees.

The fourth year of this degree is dedicated to media and communications study including the internship, during which you are able to undertake a semester in a work placement with a media industry partner. The Faculty has a wide range of internships you can choose from and you are able to submit an internship of your own for approval, including international organisations.

The diagram below demonstrates the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Arts Media & Communications/ Law combination. The order of core units is a guide to its sequence:

COMMERCE/LAW

BACHELOR OF COMMERCE (BCOM)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

One of the most popular degree combinations at the University of Sydney, Commerce/Law equips you for a career in business as well as the law. The Sydney BCom provides you with the opportunity to study in areas that are of particular relevance to the management and conduct of business, such as accounting, business information systems, commercial law, finance, industrial relations and human resource management, international business, management, management decision sciences, and marketing. Depending on the units of study chosen, this award course may also be recognised by CPA Australia, the Institute of Chartered Accountants in Australia, the Australian Computer Society and the Australian Human Resources Institute.

You must complete 6 core units of study as part of the BCom, plus a Commerce major or extended major. If you wish to complete Honours, you may do so in your fourth year of study, deferring your remaining law units until your fifth year of study.

The diagram below demonstrates the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Commerce/Law combination. The order of core units is a guide to its sequence:

DESIGN IN ARCHITECTURE/LAW

BACHELOR OF DESIGN IN ARCHITECTURE (BDESARCH)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

In 2012 the University of Sydney will launch the Bachelor of Design in Architecture/ Bachelor of Laws combined degree program.

This five-year program, one of the few of its kind in Australia, prepares students for careers in both architecture and law. It will be ideal if your interests and aspirations span these two respected fields.

It works by spreading out the first year of the Sydney LLB over three years of the Design in Architecture program. Students enrol in the Faculty of Architecture, Design and planning for the first three years and then transfer to the Law School to finish the last two years of their studies. On completion of the program you will be uniquely positioned to elect whether you want to enter legal or architectural practice or pursue the broadening nexus between these fields. To become a registered architect you would need to complete a further two years of study in the Master of Architecture.

At the time of print, the Bachelor of Design in Architecture/Bachelor of Laws combined degree program was subject to final approval from the University of Sydney. Please consult the Sydney Law School directly before lodging your application.

The diagram below demonstrates the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Design in Architecture/Law combination. The order of core units is a guide to its sequence:

ECONOMICS/LAW

BACHELOR OF ECONOMICS (BEC)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

One of the most established degree combinations at the University of Sydney, Economics/Law enables you to acquire a versatile and relevant professional double-degree. The Sydney BEc provides you with a solid grounding in quantitative techniques and econometrics and is a specialist program that allows the completion of a major in Economics, Econometrics or Financial Economics. Economics at the University of Sydney is internationally renowned and is taught through a variety of theoretical perspectives. Upon graduation, you will have strong credentials for many specialist areas, such as economic and social research, international trade, analysis of financial and commodity markets.

You complete 4 core or compulsory units of study plus a major or extended major. You can select additional elective units in subject areas through the Sydney Business School including Accounting, International Business, Management and Marketing. If you wish to complete Honours, you can do so in your fourth year of study, deferring your remaining law units until your fifth year of study.

The diagram below demonstrates the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Economics/Law combination. The order of core units is a guide to its sequence:

ENGINEERING/LAW

BACHELOR OF ENGINEERING (BE)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

The Sydney Engineering/Law combined degree is six years in duration. You can select a major of study from 20 specialist areas that include:

Aeronautical
Aeronautical Space
Biomedical
Chemical & Biomolecular
Civil
Civil – Construction Management
Civil – Environmental Civil – Geotechnical
Civil – Project Engineering & Management
Civil – Structural Electrical

Electrical – Bioelectronics
Electrical – Computer
Electrical – Power
Electrical - Telecommunications
Mechanical
Mechanical – Space
Mechantronic
Mechantronic – Space
Software

As an Engineering/Law student, you have the benefit of selecting your chosen specialisation upon enrolment. However, if you are unsure of your preferred selection, you can enrol in Flexible First Year. This initiative allows you to change at the end of Semester One, or the end of Year One, to one of the many specialisations on offer. You can still complete the BE in the normal time and emerge fully qualified in the area of your choice, with as much in-depth knowledge as those from less flexible courses.

You choose from two streams – Stream A or Stream B. In either Stream, you study the same type of subjects in Semester One, and if you so wish, switch to your preferred selection in Semester Two. The table below is a guide only.

The diagram below demonstrates the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Engineering/Law combination. The order of core units is a guide to its sequence:

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY/LAW

BACHELOR OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY (BIT)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

This combination permits you to complete the University's four year IT degree alongside law. The Sydney BIT degree has been designed to equip you for leadership roles in the IT industry. Developed in extensive consultation with industry to ensure you are prepared for the changes demanded in this dynamic area, it gives you considerable flexibility and the opportunity to undertake a major research project.

You complete a major in computer science or information systems. Information systems involves creating computer systems which satisfy individual and organisational needs. You study issues such as:

- Strategic planning
- System development
- System implementation
- Network design and management
- Operational management
- End-user needs and education

In Computer Science you undertake a study of computers and the programs that run on computers. No previous programming knowledge is assumed, but you are expected to graduate with sound knowledge and skills in the following areas:

Languages such as Java, C, C++ and Python

Computer programming, including the study of algorithms, data structures, networks and operating system internals

This major will appeal to you if you are more technically-minded and wish to contribute to the future development and support of technology.

The diagram below is a guide to the structure and study pattern of your typical Sydney Information Technology/Law combination. The order of core units is a guide to its sequence:

SCIENCE/LAW

BACHELOR OF SCIENCE (BSc)/ BACHELOR OF LAWS (LLB)

The Sydney Science/Law combination allows you to select from up to 30 specialist majors in Science alongside Law. The Faculty of Science also offers you the opportunity to choose from either the Bachelor of Science (BSc) or the Bachelor of Science (Advanced). In relation to the latter, you can select a major area of study from the following:

Biochemistry
Bioinformatics
Biology
Chemistry
Computer Science
Computational Science
Financial Maths & Statistics
Geography
Geology

Geophysics
Marine Science
Mathematics
Medicinal Chemistry
Microbiology
Neuroscience
Pharmacology
Physics
Physiology
Plant Sciences
Statistics

If you select the general Science degree, you have the added opportunity of selecting a major area of study from the following as well:

Agricultural Chemistry

Anatomy and Histology
Cell Pathology
Environmental Studies
History & Philosophy of Science
Immunobiology
Information Systems
Nanoscience & Technology
Psychology
Soil Science

If you're enrolled in the BSc (Advanced), you would complete one major at the Advanced level. The Honours program requires an additional year of study and research. You must meet minimum progression requirements to continue to study in the BSc (Advanced) degree.

A young woman with long black hair, wearing a floral dress and a black jacket, is smiling on a staircase. She is holding a red phone in her hands. The background shows a modern building interior with a staircase and a glass railing.

“Studying law at the University of Sydney has really challenged me to think more critically and with a greater level of independence than demanded by any of my other subjects. The skills gained really will transcend the field of law and will serve as an advantage in countless aspects of both my academic and professional career.”

THE SYDNEY LLB – COMPULSORY CURRICULUM

The majority of the Sydney LLB degree consists of compulsory study for the purposes of recognition for the profession and practice of law. It meets the academic requirements for the purposes of practising law in Australia and may also be recognised overseas. The compulsory areas of law you must study to meet these requirements are:

- Administrative law
- Civil procedure
- Company law
- Contracts
- Criminal law and procedure
- Equity
- Evidence
- Federal and state constitutional law
- Professional conduct (including basic trust accounting)
- Property
- Torts

In addition, Sydney Law School is the only Australian law school that requires you to complete two compulsory units in international law. Each of its compulsory units of study is summarised below in sequential order to give you a snapshot of its content:

FOUNDATIONS OF LAW

The very first unit that you must study, this unit provides you with a foundation core for the study of law. It gives you an overview of the Australian legal system, alongside an introduction to the skills of legal reasoning and analysis. You will cover topics including: judge made and statute law; the relationship between courts and parliament; role and function of courts, tribunals and dispute resolution; principles of judicial reasoning; statutory interpretation; the concept of rights in Australian law.

TORTS

In this unit, you will examine the concept of liability for civil wrongs. You will learn about the function and scope of modern tort law, as well as the rationale and utility of its governing principles. You will cover topics including: the relationship between torts and other branches of common law such as contract and criminal law; the role of fault as the principal basis of liability; the historical development of the concept of trespass; the concept of intentional injury; defences to trespass, including consent, necessity and contributory negligence; the concept of compensation for personal injuries; defences to negligence.

CIVIL & CRIMINAL PROCEDURE

In this unit, you will consider the procedures relating to civil dispute resolution and criminal justice. You will examine the features of an adversarial system of justice and its impact on process. You will cover topics including: civil and alternative dispute resolution; procedures for a civil action including case management, evidence gathering and the rules of privilege; crime and society; police powers; bail and sentencing; ethics.

CONTRACTS

This unit provides you with the legal background for transactions involving the supply of goods and services. Its central aim is to provide you with an understanding of the basic principles of contract law; how those principles are applied in practice to solve problems and how to critically evaluate and make normative judgements about the operation of the law. You will cover topics including: the rules that regulate the creation, terms, performance, breach and discharge of a contract; the ownership of property and its transferral from one person to another.

LEGAL RESEARCH I & II

In this unit, you will receive an introduction to the location and citation of primary and secondary legal materials. You will cover topics including: legal research techniques; advanced searching techniques; the use of Lexis.com, Westlaw and other complex commercial databases.

CRIMINAL LAW

In this unit, you will examine the general principles of criminal law in context as they operate in the state of New South Wales, Australia. You will receive a critical analysis of these laws and their contemporary social and political relevance. In addition, you will consider a range of theoretical literature as well as critical commentary, with a focus on conventional wisdom concerning the operation of criminal justice. You will cover topics including: the process of proof in a criminal prosecution and its defence; the determination of criminal liability; the contradictions presented by the application of legal principle to complex social problems.

PUBLIC INTERNATIONAL LAW

This unit provides you with a general introduction to the general problems, sources and techniques of public international law. You will survey the fundamental rules and principles of public international law through an examination of a variety of topics that include: the nature, function and scope of public international law; the sources of public international law; the law of treaties including principles of treaty interpretation; the relationship between public international law and municipal law; the extent of state jurisdiction; state responsibility, including diplomatic protection, nationality of claims and exhaustion of local remedies; immunity from state jurisdiction; regulation of the use of force and dispute settlement.

TORTS & CONTRACTS II

This unit aims to provide you with an appreciation of the integrated study of the law of obligations and remedies. It is an advanced unit and you examine the impact of related statutory liability and remedies. You will cover topics including: concurrent, proportionate and vicarious liability; the role of statutory duties and powers in tort law; liability for misrepresentation in tort, contract and under statute; liability for economic loss in tort, including some comparative study; consideration of causation and remoteness of damage in tort and contract; damages for breach of contract.

PUBLIC LAW

This unit provides you with an examination of the fundamental tenets of constitutionalism and constitutional principle, as manifested in the Australian constitutional context, at both federal and state level. You will cover topics including: constitutionalism and the rule of law; representative and responsible government; amendment of the commonwealth and state constitutions; separation of powers; judicial power and implications derived from chapter III of the constitution; the executive and its powers; accountability of the executive to parliament, courts and tribunals; administrative rule-making.

ADMINISTRATIVE LAW

In this unit, you will study the relationships of individuals and organisations with government decision makers. You will examine the legal principles which apply to those relationships with the aim of developing an understanding of the extent to which decision-makers within the executive branch of the government are accountable to parliament, to the courts and to other administrators, such as ombudsmen and merits review tribunals. You will acquire an overview of relevant legal principles and an understanding of how values of openness, fairness and participation may be promoted. By adopting a critical perspective, you will develop an appreciation of how political theory and the insights of other disciplines may provide a framework for analysing the choices made by administrators, and by judges in judicial review.

FEDERAL CONSTITUTIONAL LAW

In this unit, you will develop an understanding of the fundamentals of federal constitutional law through the study of key judicial decisions on powers and prohibitions in the Commonwealth Constitution. The course is designed to give you a general conceptual framework for solving problems about federal constitutional law by a detailed treatment of selected topics, that include: the function of the High Court as the final arbiter of constitutionality; the techniques of judicial review as applied in Australia; the adequacy of the Constitution as Australia's basic instrument of government and on the scope for 'reform' by interpretation; trade and commerce, severance and reading down, inconsistency, external affairs, defence, corporations, freedom of interstate trade, general doctrines of characterisation and interpretation, grants, revenue powers, excise duties, and constitutional rights; the US Constitution as a point of comparison and contrast.

INTRODUCTION TO PROPERTY & COMMERCIAL LAW

This unit provides you with an introduction to two key sources of rights and obligations in modern western law. It is designed to give you an opportunity to consider the role these areas of law play in Australian society, as well as giving a good grounding in legal principle. You will cover topics including: notions of "property"; an introduction to personal property; an introduction to real property including rights to fixtures and airspace; the different title systems relating to land in New South Wales (Torrens; strata; Crown lands and including indigenous systems); the nature and classification of equitable interests in land and personality; the principles governing assignment of rights to property at common law and in equity (including by sale and by compulsion - such as by bankruptcy), and an introduction to the principles for resolving competing claims to property.

THE LEGAL PROFESSION

In this unit, you will concentrate on the regulation of legal practice and its practitioners. You will examine lawyers' duties to their clients and the Court, and the ways in which the rules and principles of confidentiality and conflicts of interest shape the advice and representation lawyers provide for their clients. Topics covered include: the nature and structure of the legal profession; historical struggles to regulate the profession; the current regulatory regime in New South Wales; the major cultural and economic forces that challenge attempts to regulate the profession; alternative ways of organising legal practice and providing legal services; the manner in which clients are treated by lawyers.

CORPORATIONS LAW

In this unit of study, you will consider the legal structure of the corporation as an organisational form for both public and proprietary companies. You will receive an introduction to both the law of corporations and the Australian context in which that operates. You will focus on the nature of the corporation and its governance structure. You will cover topics including: the implications of the company as a separate legal entity; power to bind the company; duties of directors, and shareholders rights and remedies.

EQUITY

This unit provides you with an appreciation of equitable principles and remedies, which is fundamental to understanding the Australian legal system. You will receive an explanation on the origins of the equitable jurisdiction and examines its role today. You will cover topics including: the law of trusts, including remedial constructive trusts; property in equity; fiduciary obligations; the doctrines of undue influence and unconscionable dealing; estoppels; equitable remedies.

EVIDENCE

In this unit, you will focus on the operation of the laws of evidence in civil and criminal trials. You will consider the laws of evidence contained in statute and the common law. It aims to introduce you to the contexts within which lawyers might encounter evidential issues in the course of a trial. You will also give consideration to the capacity to think critically about the doctrines that govern the laws of evidence. You will cover topics including: rules for adducing evidence; the rules of admissibility (relevance, hearsay, opinion, tendency and coincidence, credibility, character, privilege and the discretions to exclude evidence); issues relating to proof; ethical problems that may arise in the conduct of a trial.

REAL PROPERTY

The law of real property has always played an important role in the economic, social and political life of England and of those countries, such as Australia, which adopted its legal system. This unit of study aims to provide you with a study of the modern-day law of real property. You will cover topics including: the nature of the various interests in land; the law of co-ownership (joint tenancies and tenancies in common); priorities between competing interests in land; legislation governing the registration of instruments affecting land; the Mabo and Wik cases and concepts of native title; the Torrens system; the law relating to easements and covenants; the law of mortgages and leases.

PRIVATE INTERNATIONAL LAW A

In this unit, you will examine the part of municipal law in every developed legal system which is concerned with legal issues which have a connection with a foreign legal system. You will address the three persistent issues in private international law: jurisdiction; choice of law and the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgements. You will study topics that include: scope of private international law; personal jurisdiction; substance and procedure; proof of foreign law; exclusionary doctrines; choice of law in contract; choice of law in tort; comparative choice of law in tort and recognition and enforcement of foreign judgements.

THE SYDNEY LLB – ELECTIVE CURRICULUM

Following the completion of the majority of the compulsory curriculum, you must then choose to undertake up to seven elective units of study, one of which must be a jurisprudence or legal philosophy elective unit of study. The Sydney Law School's LLB elective curriculum enables you to select advanced study in core areas such as Criminal Law, Corporate Law, International Law and Contracts. Alternatively, you can choose from an ever expanding list of specialist units, from Intellectual Property to Medical Law to Criminology to Environmental Law.

The elective curriculum is also a reflection of Sydney Law School's considerable postgraduate coursework program in law. The units of study are organised into two sets – Part 1 and Part 2. Not every unit is offered each year. The information is a guide only. You must consult the Sydney Law School Handbook or website for the latest list – <http://sydney.edu.au/law>

THE SYDNEY LLB – EXCHANGE PROGRAM

The Sydney Law School offers you an extensive range of student exchange programs with universities throughout the United States, Canada, Europe and Asia. It provides you with an exciting and challenging way of broadening your academic horizons and enriching your experience in different environments and cultures. You can complete a semester of study overseas and receive credit for this study towards your Bachelor of Laws (LLB) degree.

The Law School can send you on a faculty-specific exchange, university-wide exchange or study abroad program. It is a rewarding opportunity that will add an international dimension to your law degree; challenge you academically; facilitate your development of new skills; and enhance your personal growth and self-confidence.

When you're on exchange, you are an enrolled full-time student at the University of Sydney and pay all relevant fees (compulsory subscriptions, commonwealth supported contributions or tuition fees). You may be required to pay some minor administrative charges or health insurance, however you are not required to pay any other fees to the host institution.

You can choose from two different types of exchange programs - University-wide and Faculty-specific exchange programs. Faculty-specific exchange programs are available to you as a student of a particular faculty, in this case the Sydney Law School. You can undertake one of the Law School's exclusive exchange agreements with Law Schools in Europe, North America and Asia. University-wide exchange programs offer an additional range of Law Schools to study with and the program is administered by the University's International Office.

The Faculty-Specific and University-Wide programs are very similar. In order to take full advantage of both programs, you are only permitted to go on exchange in your final year and can only attend for one semester. You may consider a Faculty-specific exchange preferable to a University-Wide program owing to the following reasons:

- The reputation of the Law Schools with which there are agreements
- The quality of the legal education on offer
- The diversity and availability of creditable law units

THE SYDNEY OXFORD LLB/BCL

Sydney Law School is pleased to announce the Sydney Oxford LLB/BCL, a unique collaboration with the United Kingdom's largest law school. The initiative will permit you to receive a Sydney LLB as well as an Oxford BCL.

The agreement will allow for high-achieving students to be offered early admission to the BCL. Instead of completing the final semester of the LLB in Sydney, you will be awarded both a Sydney LLB and Oxford BCL. Under this agreement the time taken to complete both awards will be reduced by one semester. You will receive either a:

Bachelor of Civil Law

Master's in Law and Finance

Either degree from the Faculty of Law at Oxford University refers to the award of a BCL.

The program is open to final year law students at Sydney Law School. Admission is competitive and is assessed by Oxford. You will commence your BCL studies at Oxford in late September alongside other BCL candidates, following successful completion of your penultimate semester of the LLB at Sydney Law School. The first intake will be in September 2011. Please note that students are liable for all tuition, travel and living expenses associated with the BCL.

THE OXFORD BACHELOR OF CIVIL LAW (BCL)

Oxford's Bachelor of Civil Law (BCL) is one of the most highly esteemed master's-level qualifications in the common law world. You are expected to analyse complex material critically and to consider it from different perspectives. Attention to legal puzzles is often combined with discussion of underlying policy problems, and you are expected to make your own contribution to the debate. In the seminars you are likely to find students from a range of jurisdictions and backgrounds. This diversity among contributors also helps to stimulate variety and depth in discussions.

You choose your units from a selection of 30 or so. Each student takes either 3 or 4 BCL courses. Teaching on the BCL is shared between the faculty and the colleges. A typical BCL course might have one or two faculty-level events per week. At some point in the year there will also be a course of three or four tutorials in each course at college level. A tutorial is an hour or so of intensive discussion between one tutor and typically two or three students. However, teaching methods vary somewhat, as do class sizes. Different courses or different parts of a single course may take place in different terms. All examinations (except the essay-based examination for Jurisprudence and Political Theory) take place at the end of the academic year, in early July.

THE OXFORD MASTER'S IN FINANCE AND LAW

The Masters in Law and Finance consists of core and elective study. You will undertake the following core courses:

Finance I

Finance II

First Principles of Financial Economics

Law and Economics of Corporate Transactions

You then have the option of completing a further two law courses, or one dissertation and one law course. Elective courses include:

Comparative and European Corporate Law

Competition Law

Conflict of Laws

Corporate Finance Law

Corporate Insolvency Law

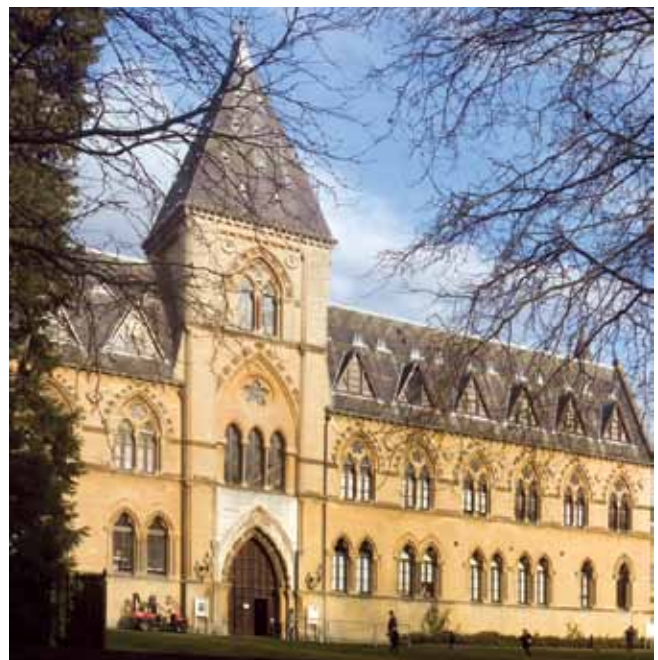

European Business Regulation

International Economic Law

International Intellectual Property

Principles of Financial Regulation

Transnational Commercial Law

THE SYDNEY LLB – SOCIAL JUSTICE PROGRAM

At Sydney Law School you now have the opportunity to gain practical legal experience and provide vital services to disadvantaged members of our community.

The Sydney Law School Social Justice Program will help expose you to real-world cases, enable you to apply knowledge gained in the classroom, and develop practical skills such as researching, case-writing, and client interviewing. Opportunities will be created by partnering with community legal centres and other organisations offering legal advice and representation to special interest groups. You will experience first-hand the impact of a pro-bono service on the wider community.

A QUALITY LEARNING EXPERIENCE FOR SYDNEY STUDENTS

Sydney Law School secured a grant through the University's Teaching Improvement and Equipment Scheme to develop curriculum design guidelines and a model curriculum for the Social Justice Program. The development of these guidelines and model curriculum will ensure that you will experience good learning and teaching practice and consistency across all units in the Social Justice Program as it develops. The effectiveness of the Program will be evaluated in consultation with students, clinical legal partners, employers of our graduates, and the wider profession.

CLINICAL LEGAL PARTNERS

A number of established community legal organisations are partnered with Sydney Law School. They have an excellent track record in providing much-needed professional legal services to the community.

The Social Justice Program will arrange placements for you with various organisations. These may include the following:

Refugee Advice and Casework Service (RACS)

RACS is involved in a variety of legal work on behalf of refugees, including applications for protection visas, hearings at the Refugee Review Tribunal and Department of Immigration and Citizenship.

Public Interest Law Clearing House (PILCH)

PILCH was established in New South Wales to identify areas of public interest where legal assistance may be provided by private lawyers; to match eligible clients with private lawyers prepared to act on a pro bono or other basis and to facilitate co-operation between private and public interest lawyers on public interest issues. PILCH has a diverse membership and support base including private law firms, barristers, the Bar Association, the Law Society, community legal centres, and government lawyers.

Environmental Defender's Office (EDO)

The Environmental Defender's Office is a not-for-profit community legal centre specialising in public interest environmental law. The EDO assists individuals and community groups who are working to protect the natural and built environment. The EDO is part of a national network of EDOs who help to protect the environment through law in their States.

OTHER CLINICAL LEGAL EDUCATION OPPORTUNITIES

Sydney Law School has run Australia's first externship program in law, the External Placement Program (EPP), since 1996. A highly successful clinical offering, it has been the blueprint for the numerous Australian externship programs that have followed.

In this unit of study, you will gain the opportunity to work for up to one day per week during the semester in a 'public interest' placement site. In addition, you will attend fortnightly seminars which are designed to promote discussion and reflection on a range of issues that may arise during the course of the placement as well as seminar presentations on matters relevant to public interest externships. The unit has a public interest focus which is reflected in the selection of placement sites.

THE SYDNEY LLB – PEER MENTORING PROGRAM

With the support of SULS (Sydney University Law Society) and CLSS (Chinese Law Student Society) the Sydney Law School launched a Peer to Peer Mentoring program in 2010. The aim of the program is to help you as a first year student to settle into University and make you feel part of the Sydney Law School.

The program is designed to assist you in building social and academic networks through attending a range of academic and social events with the support of a mentor. The mentor will be a senior student who will work with a group of first year students to help you settle in. The program events run throughout first semester and will help you acquire new knowledge and feel connected to the Sydney Law School.

YOUR MENTOR

The mentor will be a more senior student who will work with a group of 3-5 mentees. All mentors and mentees will meet at The Dean's Welcome to New Students during Orientation Week. The mentor will help you by:

- giving you information about all the services on campus

- organising two mentoring group activities and introducing you to other students
- inviting you to social and academic events
- giving you general information about life in Sydney
- providing someone you can talk to about your experiences and studies

The mentor is not responsible for:

- tutoring
- academic advice

HOW LONG DOES THE PROGRAM RUN FOR?

The Program will run throughout first semester.

The program will run as follows:

- Program Launch (February)
- Two Mentor/Mentee Meetings (February-March)
- Additional academic and social events (throughout Semester 1)

WHAT WILL I BE REQUIRED TO ATTEND?

It is recommended that you attend the program launch and then the two official meetings with your mentor. These meetings are not compulsory.

However, meetings have been found to be beneficial in helping you to share information, meet other students and gain advice and guidance from a senior student.

You can then choose whether you want to attend the additional social and academic events.

WHAT HAPPENS IF I STOP ATTENDING MEETINGS?

Meeting attendance is not compulsory. As a matter of courtesy, please advise your mentor if you cannot attend the meetings.

WHEN WILL EVENTS TAKE PLACE?

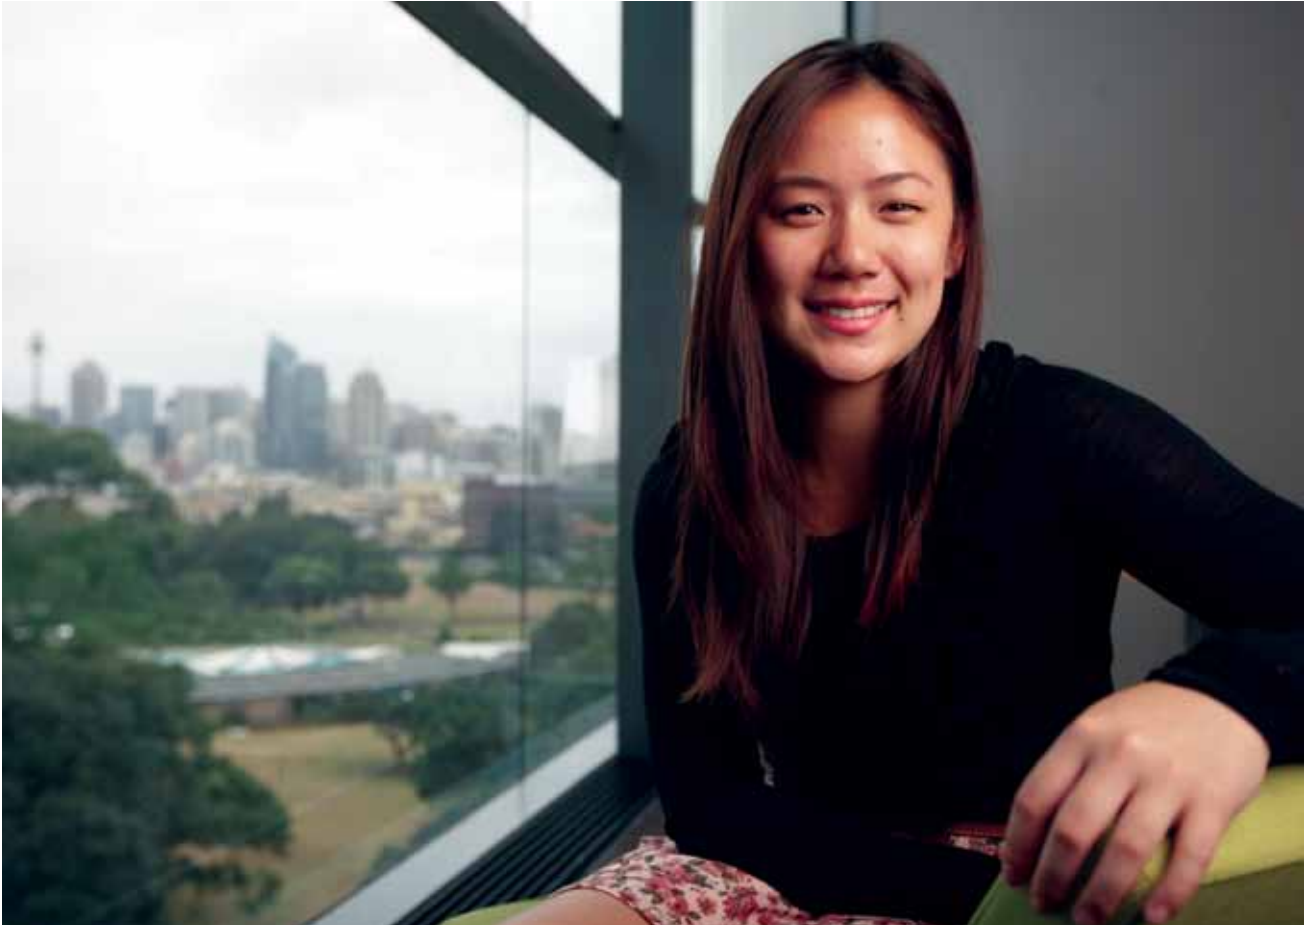

Social and academic events are organised by the Mentoring Program Coordinator. Please check your University email regularly for the dates and times of social events.

THE SYDNEY LLB – HONOURS

Sydney Law School now offers an integrated honours research program incorporated in its Bachelor of Laws (LLB). This honours program is intended to provide research training opportunities for motivated and capable students and to reward and recognise outstanding academic ability. You will not be required to complete an additional honours year, but you will enrol in research units in lieu of two elective units of study. You will also be expected to submit a thesis demonstrating independent, advanced and original research.

Admission to honours will be on a competitive basis, and it is anticipated that only the top 20% of the student cohort will be offered places in the honours program. Admission will be assessed on your performance in compulsory law units. You will be required to complete a dissertation of 12,000 words, and attend a non-assessed Research Workshop, but no other coursework component will be required. You will complete the dissertation over one semester in your final year, which will allow you to complete all your honours requirements in one semester at Sydney, and take advantage of overseas opportunities such as an exchange or the Oxford BCL in the other semester.

SYDNEY LLB HONOURS PROGRAM AT A GLANCE

- 12,000 word dissertation
- Non-assessed research workshop
- Research units substituted for 2 x elective units of study (12 credit points)
- One semester duration
- Admission based on academic performance in compulsory curriculum

THE SYDNEY LLB – STUDENT SOCIETIES

As a student of Sydney Law School, you are integral to the reputation of the Sydney Law School and the strength of the Sydney LLB. In turn, student societies enhance your experience of studying the Sydney LLB. Currently, two student societies operate in association with Sydney Law School.

SYDNEY UNIVERSITY LAW SOCIETY (SULS)

Formed in 1902, the aims of SULS are various, and include the creation of an enjoyable social climate and feeling of camaraderie among the students. Furthermore, SULS, through its continued sponsorship, has been successful in developing a stronger relationship with the legal profession, particularly in Sydney. The society's activities include Orientation activities for new students coupled with an information handbook, the organisation of social events such as the Law Ball, the Law Dinner, free lunches, cocktail parties and semester parties.

SULS organises the highly popular Law Revue. The Revue is its most public arm and continues to be an enormous success for all those involved. SULS is also responsible for organising guest speakers to attend lunchtime seminars on interesting and controversial topics. The society runs the mooting programs for both senior and junior mooters. In addition to the internal competition, the HV Evatt Moot is held annually between the University of New South Wales and the University of Sydney. There is also an Australia-wide Family Law Mooting Competition and the worldwide Jessup International Law Mooting Competition.

SULS is a member of the Australasian Law Students' Association (ALSA), which holds its annual conferences in the half-yearly break, with an intervarsity mooting competition, witness examination competition, student papers and legal seminars as its primary focus. The Society publishes its own annual journal, Blackacre, that contains a variety of articles, ranging from the humorous to the historical. SULS also publishes a fortnightly newsletter called Hearsay, which provides students with regular information about upcoming social events, lectures and interesting legal snippets. Polemic is a sociolegal journal also published by SULS, which has a vast range of contributors from all facets of the legal profession.

There are five student representatives of the Law School elected by students each October (the President of the Sydney University Law Society, three undergraduates and one postgraduate). Their role is to assist you in any way possible, whether that be the alteration of faculty policy on exams, assessment, or making enquiries for any one student on an individual matter. They are available for advice on University by-laws and resolutions and representing you before members of the Law School staff and administration. For further information, consult the SULS website

– www.suls.org.au

CHINESE LAW STUDENTS SOCIETY (CLSS)

Founded in 2004, the Chinese Law Students Society (CLSS) at the University of Sydney is dedicated to enhancing the quality of student life at the university and providing its members with opportunities on a global scale. The society's aims are to:

- assist the ambitions and aspirations of members in their pursuit of academic excellence
- provide members with exciting career opportunities both within Australian and overseas
- facilitate a range of enjoyable social events for members who share a common interest in law

CLSS comprises four main portfolios:

- Careers
- Education
- Social
- Publications

For more information, visit CLSS's website: www.usydclss.com

“As I progress through my degree, studying law has not only opened up a multitude of career opportunities, it has provided me with skills that transfer across professions, industries and careers. I have acquired a legal perspective that I hope will follow me in the future, whichever path I choose to take, as well as an analytical ability to break down complex problems into fine detail. Moreover, it serves as a fundamental challenge to my true potential. ”

THE SYDNEY LLB – SCHOLARSHIPS & PRIZES

In addition to the University of Sydney's scholarships, the Sydney Law School offers you a number of scholarships during your studies and upon graduation. Please note: the Sydney Law School's Prizes and Scholarships are currently under review.

UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY SCHOLARSHIPS FOR SCHOOL LEAVERS

Eligibility: Minimum ATAR of 95 plus other achievements

Value: $6,000 per year

Duration: 1 to 5 years

Application due: Before 30 September 2011

These scholarships are awarded on a combination of school examination results, Australian Tertiary Admission Rank (ATAR) and other achievements (leadership, creativity, self-motivation, communication skills etc). Your suitability will be considered based on your application. The Scholarships are awarded at two levels (your application will automatically be considered for both):

'Merit award': available for a maximum of five years (must maintain excellent academic record)

'Entry award': available for one year only

UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY NATIONAL SCHOLARSHIPS

Eligibility: If you live outside of NSW and the ACT and have received a University of Sydney Outstanding Achievement Scholarship, University of Sydney Scholarship (Merit or Entry) or a University of Sydney Access Scholarship

Value: $5,000 per year on top of the value of your principal scholarship

Duration: The same duration as your principal scholarship

How to Apply: You do not need to apply for these scholarships although you must have been awarded a relevant University of Sydney Scholarship to be eligible.

These scholarships are designed to support you if you are applying to the University of Sydney through UAC from outside of NSW and ACT and help cover the extra living costs involved in moving to a different state to attend university. If you are an interstate student and have been awarded a University of Sydney Scholarship (Access, Entry, Merit or Outstanding Achievement) you will automatically receive a National Scholarship. No application is necessary.

UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY SCHOLARSHIPS FOR OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT IN THE HSC

Eligibility: ATAR of 99.95

Duration: Maximum of 5 years

Application: You do not need to apply, although you must list a University of Sydney preference on your application for university admission. You will be contacted after the ATAR release if you meet the criteria. Unlike other scholarships, they are on the basis of the ATAR only. The University will contact you by phone and mail if you receive a ATAR of 99.95. If you are offered this generous scholarship and take it up, you cannot concurrently hold another scholarship of equal or greater value at the University.

PARTNER FACULTY UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY SCHOLARSHIPS

As a Combined Law student, you may also receive a scholarship from your partner faculty. For further details, please visit the relevant Faculty website:

ALAN BISHOP SCHOLARSHIP

The Alan Bishop Scholarship was established by Mrs Christine Bishop in memory of her husband, His Honour Alan Bishop. The scholarship is awarded to a student in the final year of the LLB who demonstrates academic excellence, broad personal interests, community engagements and has long term goals to make a positive contribution to society through the Law.

Applicants will be assessed on their degree performance and other measures of merit, including a personal statement and an interview process. The scholarship is for one year and is worth $6,000.

Applications close: March each year

DAVID BURNETT MEMORIAL SCHOLARSHIPS IN SOCIAL JUSTICE

Established by the family of David Burnett, a promising Arts/Law student tragically killed in an accident at the archaeological site of Petra, Jordan in January 2008, the Scholarship is open to applicants enrolled in the Sydney Law School Social Justice Program.

Applicants will be assessed on a Curriculum Vitae and a statement explaining why they would be a fitting winner and how the financial assistance will assist them to advance their studies and make a positive impact in the areas of community participation and social justice. A maximum of two scholarships shall be awarded in a calendar year. The value of each is $3,000 for one semester.

Applications close: TBA

ERL SCHOLARSHIP

The ERL Scholarship was established by alumnus, Edward Loong to assist outstanding students in need of financial assistance in completing their LLB.

Two scholarships are awarded each year with the value of each $2,500. It is tenable for one year only.

Applications close: April each year

GAIRE BLUNT SCHOLARSHIP

The Gaire Blunt scholarship is being offered by the Business Law Section of the Law Council of Australia. It commemorates Gaire Blunt who was a leading competition law practitioner and a partner at Allen Allen & Hemsley (now known as Allens Arthur Robinson) from 1970 to 2005.

This scholarship recognises that Gaire played a central role in developing and mentoring the careers of many young lawyers, and was always concerned to ensure that he gave younger lawyers the opportunity to demonstrate and develop their talents.

One Scholarship of $5,000 is offered each year and is based on an application and submission of a paper of 10,000-20,000 words.

Applications close: February each year

THE LARRY KWOK AUSTRALIA-CHINA SCHOLARSHIP AND THE GOUGH WHITLAM AUSTRALIA-CHINA SCHOLARSHIP

Both scholarships were established in 2008 by donations received from Mr Larry Kwok and the Kwok Family Trust. These scholarships aim to promote relations and understanding between Australia and China, to strengthen the University of Sydney profile and brand in China, to expand the existing links between the University of Sydney and Peking University and to develop and promote a model of support that will serve as a positive example to other alumni in Hong Kong, China and South East Asia in general.

The scholarship is open to you if you are a full-time undergraduate student, are an Australian citizen or permanent resident and you are willing and able to undertake full-time study for a semester at Peking University. The value is $5,000 for one semester.

Applications close: October each year

PETER CAMERON SYDNEY OXFORD SCHOLARSHIP

The Scholarship was established by the Law School and the Cameron family through contributions from the friends and colleagues of the late Peter Cameron to promote further study in Law at the completion of a Bachelor of Laws (LLB).

The scholarship shall be awarded under the following conditions:

1. The value of the scholarship will be $32,000, payable as a one-off payment.
2. The scholarship shall be awarded by the Sydney Law School, on the recommendation of a selection committee constituted by the Dean.
3. The scholarship shall be awarded to enable a Law graduand/graduate to undertake a Bachelor Civil Law (BCL), or an equivalent Law degree as determined by the Dean, at the University of Oxford.
4. The tenure of the scholarship is one year. Payment is conditional on acceptance into the Bachelor of Civil Law (BCL) degree program. The student may be required to repay the scholarship if they withdraw from the degree before completion.
5. The scholarship shall be open to graduands and graduates who are not of more than one year's standing from the date of their graduation at the close of applications.

6. Applicants must be Australian citizens or have permanent resident status.
7. Criteria for selection will be academic performance in the Bachelor of Laws (LLB) and community service.

Applications close: February each year

PITT COBBETT SCHOLARSHIPS

Established in 1939 by a bequest from Professor Pitt Cobbett who was appointed to the first Chair of Law in 1890 and subsequently became the first Dean of the Sydney Law School - you can apply if you are a full-time student enrolled in Combined Law at The University of Sydney.

The basis for the award is financial need and academic merit. The scholarships are awarded on the recommendation of the Dean to you if you are a candidate who provides satisfactory assurance that you require assistance to meet student expenses and who have, to the satisfaction of the Dean, demonstrated academic merit in secondary and/or tertiary education. First year students are eligible to apply.

Benefits: There may be more than one recipient per annum depending on availability of funds. The value of each scholarship will be determined by the Dean within the range of $500-$1000.

Tenure: The scholarship is tenable for one year only.

Applications close: April each year

ROY FREDERICK TURNER AM SCHOLARSHIP

Roy Frederick Turner AM was a Sydney Law School graduate who came to the University of Sydney by virtue of the Commonwealth Reconstruction Training Scheme in the late 1940's. It is hoped that this scholarship will help other disadvantaged young people to enjoy the study of Law, and upon gaining their degree go into a career in Law that includes humanitarian service.

The scholarship shall be awarded under the following conditions:

1. To a student who demonstrates academic ability as well as meeting the criteria of one more of the following: Financial disadvantage; Medical disability; Rural/remote area.
2. It is awarded for the normal full-time duration of the recipient's degree - continuation of the Scholarship each year is dependent on continued enrolment and the recipient maintaining satisfactory progress.
3. The recipient must be an Australian citizen or permanent resident; enrolled in a University of Sydney degree leading to eligibility to practice law; intends to commence or continue their studies in the year of offer.
4. The Scholarship is not transferrable except with the permission of the Sydney Law School.
5. The Scholarships cannot be deferred.
6. The recipient must be enrolled full-time.
7. It will be paid to students in two instalments at $7,000 per year.
8. The recipient must maintain an average of 65 per cent across all units of study.

Applications close: October each year

THE JUSTICE PETER HELY SCHOLARSHIP

The Scholarship was established by the Law School through contributions from the friends and colleagues of the late Justice Peter Hely to promote postgraduate study in the fields of commercial law and equity. The scholarship is open to you if you are a final year law student, law graduate and graduate of the University of Sydney, to enable you to undertake a postgraduate degree in the fields of commercial law and equity, either by research or coursework, at the University of Sydney or any other appropriate university.

The scholarship shall be awarded under the following conditions:

1. The value of the scholarship will be $17,800, payable as a one-off payment.
2. The scholarship shall be awarded on the recommendation of a selection committee constituted by the Dean.
3. The scholarship shall be awarded to enable a law graduate/graduate to undertake a postgraduate degree in law, either by research or coursework, at the University of Sydney or any other appropriate university.
4. Payment is conditional on acceptance into an appropriate law degree program. The student may be required to re-pay the scholarship if they withdraw from the degree before completion.
5. The scholarship shall be open to final year students, graduates and graduates of the Sydney Law School at the University of Sydney.
6. Applicants must be Australian citizens or have permanent resident status.
7. Criteria for selection will be academic performance in the Bachelor of Laws (LLB) or Master of Laws (LLM), or equivalent, and community service.

Applications close: February each year

VICTORIA GOLLAN MEMORIAL FUND SCHOLARSHIP

Established in 1996 by donations made in memory of Victoria Jane Barclay Gollan, the purpose of the fund is to assist an Aboriginal student in the study of law at the University of Sydney. Eligible candidates must be a full time Aboriginal student enrolled in a law degree at the University of Sydney, be it undergraduate or postgraduate. It is awarded on the basis of academic merit and financial need. The value is $1,500.

Applications close: November each year

ZOE HALL SCHOLARSHIP

Instigated by Minter Ellison and Middletons, Moore and Bevans this scholarship is in memory of Zoe Hall, a law graduate of the University of Sydney who was tragically killed with many others at Port Arthur, Tasmania on 28 April 1996. Support for the scholarship has come from the Hall family and friends, a broad cross-section of the legal profession and the community. Applicants should be full-time students who are Australian Citizens or Permanent Residents enrolled in the fourth or fifth year of Combined Law or the second or third year of Graduate Law. The basis for awarding the Scholarship is contribution to university, faculty or community activities; academic merit; and financial need. The scholarship may not be shared. The successful applicant may not hold any other scholarship or award concurrently with the scholarship. Each year, one or two scholarships may be awarded. The scholarships are valued at $5,000 per annum each, subject to availability of funding. The scholarship is tenable for one year only.

ADMISSION, APPLICATION & FEES – DOMESTIC STUDENTS

COMBINED LAW

Admission from High School

For admission into the Combined Law program, domestic students require a Australian Tertiary Admission Ranking (ATAR) or equivalent such as the University Admission Index (UAI). ATAR or equivalent cut-off points over the past few years have been as follows:

2008 99.55 (UAI)

2009 99.55 (UAI)

2010 99.65 (ATAR)

2011 99.7 (ATAR)

Sydney Law School also accepts equivalent alternative secondary qualifications from overseas. The following list provides an indicative guide. Please consult the Sydney Law School for clarification and confirmation where necessary.

International Baccalaureate (IB)

44 or above

Great Britain General Certificate of Education or Comparable Qualifications (2000 onwards – UK GCE A Levels)

22 or above = 4 x A plus one AS x B

Hong Kong Advanced Level (Hong Kong A Levels)

21 or above

Singapore and Cambridge General Certificate of Education Advanced Level (2007 onwards – Singaporean A Levels)

27.5 or above = 4 x A in H2 subjects + 3 x A in H1 subjects

United States of America Scholastic Aptitude Test (2005 onwards - USA SAT) 2130 or above with 1 Advanced Placement bonus rank point

TRANSFER

If you do not obtain the ATAR cut-off into Combined Law at Sydney, you may like to consider the transfer option. You can enrol in another degree at any University, including Sydney. Once you near the completion of your first year, you apply through UAC for a transfer place into Combined Law. You can apply for a transfer place from any institution, and from any degree.

If you have completed at least one year of a recognised tertiary qualification, your application will generally be considered on the better of either the tertiary qualification alone, or the combination of your secondary qualification and tertiary qualification.

Admission requirements are based upon your ATAR or equivalent (50 per cent) and/or Tertiary Grade Point Average (50 per cent). Entry to Combined Law is extremely competitive and experience shows that as a guide a ATAR above 97 and/or a Tertiary Grade Point Average at a Distinction level are necessary for a competitive application to transfer into Combined Law.

Applications open in August each year for courses commencing in March the following year. If you are unsuccessful in a transfer application at the end of first year, you can reapply after second year. The credit transfer policies of the Law School and its partner faculties are used when determining the amount of credit for previous studies.

SPECIAL ADMISSION

Special admission entry is available if you want to explain a record of exclusion or failure or feel your results do not reflect your abilities due to circumstances beyond your control, such as prolonged illness.

The Broadway Scheme

You can apply for a place in the University of Sydney's Broadway Scheme if you are completing a senior secondary qualification, such as the New South Wales HSC and have suffered serious educational disadvantage(s) during your studies.

If you are not a Year 12 student, you can also apply under the Broadway Scheme. For instance, you can apply if you completed your Year 12 qualification before the current year. Please contact the Special Admissions Office for further information, T: +61 2 8627 8207

If you are successful you may receive a concession of up to five points from the normal ATAR cut-offs for the University's courses. This may vary from year to year. The ATAR cut-off in 2011 was 98.25.

To apply for the Broadway Scheme, you must apply directly to the Universities Admissions Centre (UAC) using the Educational Access Schemes (EAS) application form, in addition to making the standard application for admission.

ELITE ATHLETES & PERFORMERS SCHEME

You may apply for the Elite Athletes and Performers Scheme if you can demonstrate that you are an elite athlete or performer, and have had training, competitive and/or practice commitments which have interfered with your studies.

You must present an acceptable academic qualification, such as the New South Wales HSC or a tertiary qualification, with results that are close to the standard normally required for admission into your course of choice. The majority of the undergraduate courses offered through UAC are available through this scheme.

Please contact the Admissions Office if you have questions about applying for consideration under this special entry scheme. If you wish to be considered, you must complete the application form and provide documentary evidence of any claims you have about your competitive commitments and achievements.
