SPEAKERS:

Professor Eric Emerson

Professor of Disability & Health Research at the Institute for Health Research, Lancaster University, UK.
Professor Emerson has been a member of the English Department of Health's Task Force monitoring policy and practice for people with intellectual disabilities and was a member of the External Working Group for the development of the National Service Framework for Children, Young People and Maternity Services.

Dr Amy Hewitt

Director Interdisciplinary Training, University of Minnesota, Institute on Community Integration (College of Education), USA. Joint author and editor of the recent book Staff recruitment, retention and training for community human service organizations. Dr Hewitt will be a Visiting Research Fellow at CDDS until March 2007 developing a link between the USA College of Direct Support and CDDS.

Dr Phil Morath

Acting Director of the Disability Directorate at Royal Rehabilitation Centre Sydney (RRCS)
Dr Morath brings with him over 35 years of extensive experience in the disability sector. He has held senior executive roles including CEO (The Crowle Foundation), Executive Officer (Disability Council NSW), CEO (Hornsby Challenge Foundation). He has active roles on a number of community committees including Chairperson, The Western Sydney Intellectual Disability Support Group, and Director, Qualitec Ltd. His PhD was in the area of Organisation, upgrading and innovation.

Professor Hans Reinders

Professor of Ethics and Intellectual Disability at the Vrije Universiteit, Amsterdam, The Netherlands
In view of the rise of 'managerialism' and neo-liberal economics in health care institutions Professor Reinders is currently interested in describing and defending care and support as professional practices guided by their own ethical standards.
