Outcome Measures and Research Methodologies

Developing Research Skills: formulating research questions

Professor Ian Cameron
Friday, 25 July

2:00-4:00

Charles Blunt Conference Room,
Royal Rehabilitation Centre Sydney

Registration closes 5pm,
21 July 2008
Limited places

This two hour workshop introduces participants to developing ideas and questions that can be the basis of a research project. The workshop will help participants formulate questions that are able to be researched, and also to identify the relevant types of studies to inform questions that arise in clinical practice.

Speaker:

Professor Ian Cameron

MB BS PhD (Medicine) FAFRM (RACP)

Ian is a clinical researcher who has conducted research studies of a variety of types including randomised trials, cohort studies, descriptive studies and qualitative research. These studies have generally been in rehabilitation settings.

In addition, he has experience in education for health professionals from a variety of disciplines.

Who is this workshop intended for?

- ~Health professionals (allied health clinicians, nurses and medical practitioners);
- ~who are interested in clinical research
- ~without post-graduate training in research design
- ~who have a broad understanding of the type of health research
- ~who are considering involvement in clinical research or are needing to understand the results of clinical research

What is covered in this workshop?

The following topics are covered:

- ~defining a researchable question
- ~identifying and understanding appropriate study designs
- ~online resources

What are the pre-requisites for this workshop?

It is assumed that participants attending this workshop will have a general understanding of:

- ~research in clinical settings
- ~how research studies are reported
- ~importance of evidence-based practice

Workshop objectives:

At the end of the workshop participants will:

- ~understand the key components of a well developed research question
- ~be aware of the commonly used study types
- ~understand the processes involved in developing a research study
- ~be able to identify sources of information about clinical research
