Scholarships for Overseas Study

This brochure provides information about major scholarships for study overseas at postgraduate research level and contains a list of references and other sources of information about scholarships for study overseas. It is not a comprehensive list of all overseas scholarships opportunities and is a guide only.

Prospective applicants should enquire directly with the institutions and consulates of the countries in which they intend to study. Your lecturers and supervisors may also have suggestions as to places of study appropriate to your area of study.

To receive weekly updates on the currently available scholarships, you can subscribe to the Weekly Research Scholarships Email Bulletin at http://sydney.edu.au/scholarships/research/.

The value of each scholarship is shown in Australian Dollars unless otherwise indicated. Please note that while all effort is made to ensure information provided is correct, the conditions, values, and closing dates may change without notice. You should always refer to the funding provider for further information if you intend to apply for any of these opportunities.

Updated Sept 2011
University of Sydney Scholarships for Overseas Study

University of Sydney Travelling Scholarships
Travelling scholarships are intended to fund graduates of the University of Sydney who are of not more than four years standing from qualifying their final undergraduate degree. The Scholarships are to support students to enrol and complete a higher degree overseas and are tenable in any country. Application forms are available from the Scholarships Office website in mid March each year.
Closing date normally mid April.

University of Sydney Grants-in-Aid
Grants-in-Aid (GIA) are generally designed to assist with short-term research overseas and provide supplementary living allowances, travel grants or some other kinds of financial support as deemed appropriate by the committee. Unless otherwise stated in the conditions of award for specific scholarships offered under the grants-in-aid programme, applicants must be currently enrolled in a higher degree at The University of Sydney. Applicants must also be citizens or permanent residents of Australia. Application forms are available from the Scholarships Office website in early April each year.
Applications usually close late April.

University of Sydney Postgraduate Research Support Scheme (PRSS)
The PRSS is administered by individual Schools or Departments (in some cases Faculties) and provides direct support for currently enrolled postgraduate research students. Examples of expenses which can be claimed are those related to overseas conference attendance, field work, and access to specialist resources. For a full list of claimable expenses and eligibility criteria, please refer to the online information document.
Closing date varies. Check with your School/Department/Faculty.

University of Sydney Student Exchange Programs
The University of Sydney has established a number of links with international universities. Student exchange programs allow you to study overseas and receive full credit towards your degree. As an exchange student you remain enrolled at the University of Sydney while you are away. You do not pay tuition fees at your host university. Each year the International Office awards bursaries and scholarships to students on the basis of academic merit and financial need. For further information contact the Exchange Program Unit.

Note: Some postgraduate scholarship schemes (e.g. Australian Postgraduate Awards, University of Sydney Postgraduate Awards, NHMRC Scholarships), allow recipients to apply for permission to hold their award overseas for up to one year. Contact the Scholarships Office for information.
Scholarships Tenable in Various Countries for Indigenous Australians

Endeavour Research Fellowship Indigenous Australians
The Endeavour Research Fellowships for Indigenous Australians provide financial support for Indigenous postgraduate students and postdoctoral fellows to undertake short-term research (4 to 6 months) towards an Australian Masters or PhD or postdoctoral research in any field of study within a participating country.
