

GIFT IN MEMORY OF JENNA O'GRADY DONLEY

THE UNIVERSITY OF SYDNEY

Jenna O'Grady Donley is remembered as an outstanding student and bright personality. The tragedy of the loss of such a young, vibrant, passionate and intelligent veterinarian has been felt far and wide.

“Our students and staff were deeply saddened by the loss of Jenna O'Grady Donley, one of our best and brightest – a veterinary leader of the future,” said Professor Rosanne Taylor, Dean of the Faculty of Veterinary Science.

“Jenna was exceptional – a Dean's List prize winner with diverse interests in animal health, conservation and welfare. She is best remembered for how much she cared: for her animal patients, her colleagues, her research and her chosen profession,” said Professor Taylor.

You can make a gift in memory of Jenna O'Grady Donley - an exceptional veterinarian.

Together we can continue her ground-breaking Honours research on chronic kidney disease in 'big cats' in captivity.

Completing her Honours research on chronic kidney disease in big cats, Jenna examined the clinical records of animals of the Family Felidae who had resided at Taronga Zoo and Western Plains Zoo in Dubbo. Her Honours thesis was awarded one of the highest marks ever in the Faculty of Veterinary Science.

Jenna's research provides the foundation for future studies across all zoos in Australia housing big cats and continued work with Taronga and Western Plains Zoos.

The ongoing research will use advanced molecular biology and pathology techniques to improve our understanding of this group of diseases. This will help to develop strategies for dedicated zoo staff to improve the health and management of these beautiful and threatened creatures – the big cats that Jenna loved so much.

Help continue Jenna's research by becoming a part of her legacy and making a gift to honour Jenna O'Grady Donley.
