SUBJECT SUMMARY
This unit is an introduction to the fundamental legal issues raised by the unique status of not-for-profit ("NFP") entities. Australia's legal regime regarding the regulation and governance of NFP entities is in a state of flux and thus provides an opportunity to study not only the law as it is and as it is going to be, but also relevant historical, policy, theoretical, and international issues as well. The assessment for the course is based on structured class participation and a research essay. The unit will be run in a seminar style.
