The Australian Poultry Science Symposium is the premier avian science conference in Australia and attracts delegates from across Australia and from all around the World. Over 60 peer reviewed papers and posters will be presented across the 3 day event. With the submission portal only open for 3 months, it’s important that those who hope to be included in next year’s symposium, start thinking about writing up and submitting your papers.

Please remember that once your paper has been accepted, you must make the commitment to attend and present your paper at APSS 2017. Authors who fail to register by the Author Registration Deadline, will have their paper removed from the program and will not be published the the APSS Proceedings.
