2. Information about the dual degree pathway with Fudan University

Graduate with two master's degrees from two prestigious international universities. Designed for students* who wish to engage in international business partnerships with China and take advantage of growing business opportunities in the region, this dual degree equips you with advanced analytical and quantitative skills in economics.

Upon completion, you will be awarded a Master of Economics from the University of Sydney and a Master in World Economy (Globalisation and Chinese Economy) from Fudan University.

Due to Ministry of Education of P.R. China regulations, this dual degree is not available to Chinese citizens including nationals from Hong Kong, Taiwan and Macau.*

Admission requirements

Admission to the Fudan dual degree pathway is a joint decision made by both institutions and requires:

- A bachelor's degree with a major in Economics, Econometrics or Financial Economics from the University of Sydney, or equivalent qualification
- English language proficiency requirements as indicated in the entry requirements

Requirements for completion

In this dual degree pathway, a reduction in the volume of learning of 24 credit points will be applied based on your undergraduate major in economics, representing the four foundation units in the Master of Economics.

You will be therefore required to complete 72 credit points, comprising of the following:

- 48 credit points (8 units of study) at the University of Sydney, comprising:

- 4 core units (24 credit points): Microeconomics Analysis 1, Macroeconomics Analysis 1, Econometric Applications, Communication in Economics
- 4 elective units (24 credit points), including at least one specialisation
- 24 credit points will be credited to your Sydney degree on the completion of 1 year of full time study at Fudan University, comprising:
 - 4 compulsory units: Chinese Economy, China's Taxation System and Fiscal Policy, Doing Business in China, Basic Chinese
 - 2 elective units
 - 1 master's thesis

The total duration of the degree is therefore 2 years of full time study, comprising of 1 year of full time study at the University of Sydney, and 1 year of full time study at Fudan University.

Candidates will be eligible for the dual degree upon completion of the academic requirements for the Master of Economics and the Master's program at Fudan University.

Progression rules

Dual degree students are required to successfully complete all required components each semester to remain in the dual degree program. Students who fail to meet course requirements will exit the program and may transfer to the single qualifying award only. Dual degree students may also opt out of the dual award option and continue with the single degree.

Commencement dates

Studies at the University of Sydney commence in Semester 1 (February) or Semester 2 (August).

Studies at Fudan University commence in September only.

Students completing their studies in Sydney at the end of Semester 2 will have a study gap until the following September. International student visa holders may not be able to remain in Australia during this period and will need to check with the Department of Home Affairs about their visa status.

Fee information for the dual degree pathway

The dual degree pathway consists of two separately priced tuition fee components. The exact fees that you will pay depends on the provider (Fudan University or The University of Sydney), and the calendar year in which you undertake your studies in the dual degree pathway.

The University of Sydney:

The first tuition fee component is for the study undertaken in the Master of Economics at The University of Sydney. Please refer to the fees information on this page for more detailed information.

Fudan:

The second tuition fee component is the study undertaken at Fudan University. Regardless of whether you are a Commonwealth supported student, or international full fee-paying student, tuition fees are paid directly to Fudan University. The tuition fees are available on the Fudan University website. Students are responsible for all
