Why study overseas?

Combine study and travel to broaden your academic experience and set yourself up for a global career. Develop the cultural competencies to work across borders, while having the experience of a lifetime.

Develop your self-confidence, independence and cross-cultural understanding.

Experience new ways of learning and access different academic opportunities.

Gain a global perspective for a competitive edge.

"My exchange at the University of Edinburgh has definitely been a highlight of my University studies … studying at another world class institution has helped strengthen my appreciation for the global nature of science, and the experience helped develop my independence and confidence. I would urge students considering an exchange experience to go for it!"

Adam Kaplan

70% of students said studying abroad significantly developed their employability through*: inter-cultural skills, flexibility, adaptability, self-awareness, curiosity and confidence.

92% of employers value the transferable skills developed through studying overseas

2/3 Australian graduates state that an international experience helped them land their first job*

Exchange programs

We have more than 250 exchange partners* in over 40 countries. While on exchange, you remain enrolled and continue to pay your tuition fees to the University of Sydney. A student from your host institution does the same in reverse, and the result is an exchange of students and places.

Non-exchange programs

You can undertake one or two units of study during the summer or winter break at a university where an exchange program is not available. You can access units from a wide range of study areas at a world-renowned university such as Cambridge, Harvard, Yale and the London School of Economic.

You enroll and pay tuition fees directly to the host institution or program provider. Fees for many short-term non-exchange programs include accommodation and excursions at your host destination.

Faculty programs

There are a number of faculty-run programs offered overseas. Each of these programs have different eligibility and admission criteria, and you'll need to apply directly to the faculty, school or centre. Some of these include:

- Business School Industry Placement Program
- Global Engineering Field Work for undergraduate engineering students
- Faculty of Health Sciences (FHS) Abroad opportunity for undergraduate and postgraduate health sciences students
- Offshore units from Sydney Law School
- Interdisciplinary field schools in Southeast Asia
- Suzhou-Shanghai field school in China
- Nanjing Research Exchange offered by the Faculty of Science
- Faculty of Arts and Social Sciences program at St Xavier’s College, Mumbai.

"Exchange was the single best thing I could have done at University. It opened my eyes to a whole different way of life and broadened aspirations in life."

In-country language immersion
You can travel overseas and learn another language with an intensive in-country unit as part of the new Open Learning Environment (OLE).

Along with six credit points toward your course, you’ll gain unique and first-hand experiences through a combination of formal language classes and cultural activities, including visits to museums, theatres and memorial sites.

Destinations include Spain, Germany, Italy, Indonesia, New Caledonia, Japan, South Korea.

Industry and Community Project Units (ICPUs)
ICPUs are elective units, some of which offer the opportunity to go overseas with a group of students from a range of disciplinary backgrounds to work on authentic problems and issues pitched by industry, community and government organisations.

These six credit point units are open to all eligible undergraduate students who have completed 72 credit points and have a spare elective.

Getting credit towards your course
Study overseas and experience a new culture while earning credit towards your course.

Credit approval for overseas programs

Semester exchange
The availability of subjects at your host institution is a crucial factor in choosing where you’d like to go for a semester exchange. When researching your preferred semester exchange destination, consult the partner institution’s course catalogue to confirm that there are sufficient units of study available to exchange students in your field and level of study in the semester for which you are applying.

Due to enrolment quotas and other restrictions, the availability of subjects during semester programs cannot be guaranteed, therefore studying elective units on exchange will provide more flexibility. You will need to request conditional credit approval from your faculty for the units you wish to take during your exchange semester.

Short-term exchange
You can find information about the units of study offered during short-term exchange programs on the Global Mobility Database (sydney.edu.au/study/overseas-programs). You will need to request, and receive, conditional credit approval from your faculty to be eligible for these programs.

Non-exchange programs
You can apply to receive academic credit towards your University of Sydney course, but it is not mandatory for non-exchange programs. If you wish to obtain credit for a non-exchange program you should submit a request to your faculty when you apply for the program.

Non-credit programs
Develop skills from leadership to language proficiency by participating in non-credit bearing internships, summer schools, competitions and other external programs that take you overseas.

Credit transfer
After you return, your faculty will use your official overseas transcript and any other required documentation to credit your results towards your University of Sydney course.

Have more questions?
Attend a drop-in advising session, which are usually held in the middle and end of semester. You can also contact sydney.abroad@sydney.edu.au with your questions.

“Being in Germany on the OLE in-country study changed the way I received the historical information we were taught. Learning about the key parts of German history was a much more visceral, real experience in the city of Berlin compared to in a lecture theatre.”

How to apply

We encourage you to start planning early to ensure you can undertake an overseas program (or two!) during your course. This gives you enough time to research your options, plan your enrolment, and get the advice you need before applying.

5 steps to apply for an overseas program

1. Attend an information session to explore your overseas study options.
2. Find your mobility window - the best time in your course to go overseas.
3. Research what you can study, where you can go and the programs that will suit you, using the Global Mobility Database.
4. Talk to a Sydney Abroad adviser for further help and advice.
5. Complete your application by the deadline.

By 2020, we aim to have 50 percent of our students undertake an international experience as part of their studies, with scholarship funding available for at least half of these students.

When assessing applications, we take into account your Weighted Average Mark (WAM), your academic plan, and eligibility for the host university, to ensure that it’s a good fit and you’ll have the most rewarding experience abroad possible.

You can find more information on eligibility criteria under each program at:
- sydney.edu.au/study/overseas-programs

Choosing your destination

When short-listing your preferred programs consider the following:
- availability of suitable subjects for your course and level of study
- language of instruction
- cost of living in the destination
- scholarships and loans available
- accommodation options
- lifestyle opportunities
- student support services available
- what you hope to get out of the experience.

You can research and find information about subjects, languages, housing, cost of living and lifestyle for each program at:
- sydney.edu.au/study/overseas-programs

What kind of support will I get?

Sydney Abroad Advisers work with you during the application process to help you find an overseas program most suited to your needs. If you access student support services at the University of Sydney, it is important to ensure before you apply that your chosen program will offer a comparable level of support. If you have any questions you can contact sydney.abroad@sydney.edu.au.

When can I apply?

After you’ve worked out the best time in your course to go, you’ll need to apply at least two semesters in advance for the semester/year exchange program. For a short-term program, you can apply in the semester immediately prior to the semester break when the mobility program takes place.

Scholarships and costs

In 2019, we’re offering more than $5 million in scholarships and grants for mobility programs, as well as government funded OS-HELP loans, to help cover your living and travel costs while you’re overseas.

Vice Chancellor’s Global Mobility Scholarship

Students applying to a semester exchange or selected short-term programs will automatically be considered for a VCGM Scholarship under one of the following categories.

Super Partner Scholarships

Students will receive $2000 if they are accepted into the semester exchange program at one of our seven Super Exchange Partners:
- National University of Singapore
- University of California
- University of Copenhagen
- University of Edinburgh
- University of Hong Kong
- University of Toronto
- Utrecht University

Academic Merit Scholarships

Students who have achieved a Weighted Average Mark (WAM) of 70 or above are offered $1000-$1500 when they participate in a semester exchange or short-term program.

Short-term scholarships

Scholarships of up to $1500 are available to students participating in selected short-term programs.

Faculty scholarships

There are a number of scholarships offered by faculties, as well as external groups such as community organisations, exchange partner institutions and foreign governments.

Vice Chancellor’s Global Mobility Award
The award, valued at $5000 for the semester exchange program and $2500 for eligible short-term mobility programs, will be offered to students who entered the University of Sydney on an E12 or equivalent pathway. Recipients may hold this award in conjunction with another travelling scholarship or grant.

Dalyell Scholars Global Mobility Scholarship
Dalyell Scholars are entitled to a $2000 Global Mobility Scholarship. This can be used towards either a semester or short-term mobility program where you’re receiving academic credit towards your degree.

Australian Government grants
Through the New Colombo Plan and Australia Awards, eligible students can obtain a grant of up to $7000 for semester exchange programs, and up to $3000 for short-term programs.

Centrelink
If you currently receive Centrelink benefits, you may be able to continue receiving benefits while studying full time overseas.

OS-HELP loans
OS-HELP is a loan available to eligible students enrolled in a Commonwealth supported place who have been approved to undertake some of their study overseas for credit.

Costs and fees
While on an exchange program you pay tuition fees to the University of Sydney and tuition at the host university is waived. You will be responsible for all other costs, including the airfare, accommodation, living expenses and extra travel. If you undertake a non-exchange program, you will be required to pay a tuition and/or program fee to the host institution.

“An important piece of advice would be to spend money on things you really want to do. At the beginning there can be some pressure to say yes to everything but this really isn’t necessary and you will have a much better time if you keep true to yourself.”

Global Citizenship Award

The Global Citizenship Award (GCA) is an extracurricular program that provides unique international and leadership opportunities to prepare you to be a global citizen.

You will:

− hear from influential leaders across a range of fields
− strengthen your intercultural competencies
− create meaningful international networks
− maximise your overseas study and/or work experience
− prepare yourself to compete in increasingly global labour markets
− understand your role as a global citizen
− receive recognition on your graduation statement

As a GCA participant you will earn points for participating in a range of local and overseas events and activities focused on one or more of the program.

You also gain access to GCA Development Seminars, delivered by University of Sydney experts and external facilitators where you learn about a range of international issues, develop practical skills and participate in group and personal reflection activities. Some examples of seminars are:

− Knowing Self, Knowing Others: Developing Cultural Competence
− The Art of Arguing Well
− Digital Leadership: Introduction to Design Thinking through Lego Serious Play

“Through the GCA I was offered an exclusive opportunity to attend the 2017 University Scholars Leadership Symposium in Bangkok. At this event, I was asked to speak in front of 900 delegates from more than 60 countries, and engage in discourse with international leaders and stakeholders. While I learnt a lot from the individuals who presented at the conference, I learnt the most about leadership from the students around me, who openly shared the issues facing their nations and the steps they were taking to make a change. This was an opportunity I wouldn’t have known about if I wasn’t a part of the GCA.”

What’s next?

Come along to a Sydney Abroad event and make the world your campus.

Exchange information sessions and drop-in advising sessions

We hold faculty and region-specific information sessions, as well as drop-in advising sessions, throughout the semester. Come along to meet a Sydney Abroad Adviser and learn more about the programs available before you apply.

Sydney Abroad Fair

Come to the annual Sydney Abroad Fair in April to meet representatives from our partner institutions and speak to current incoming exchange students and returned students about their experience.

Meet & Greet and Pre-Departure Sessions

After you have confirmed your participation in a program, you’ll be invited to special sessions to help prepare you for your overseas program. You will meet other students going to your host country and learn more about:

− visas, accommodation and insurance
− health, safety and security
− enrolment and credit transfer
− living in your host country
− culture shock.

FAQs

Here’s a collection of the most frequently asked questions about studying overseas.

1. What is the difference between exchange and non-exchange programs?

Exchange and non-exchange programs vary in the way you pay your tuition fees. As an exchange student, you remain enrolled at the University of Sydney and continue your usual fee arrangement. A non-exchange program requires you to enrol at a foreign university and pay fees to that university directly.

2. Where do I stay in my host country?

There are many accommodation options, which vary depending on your chosen destination. From on-campus student housing to finding your own home off-campus, there’ll be one that suits your needs and lifestyle. Many short-term programs offer accommodation packages in the program fee.

3. Is it expensive?

Studying overseas doesn’t have to be expensive. Remember that you will be living and studying abroad, not travelling on holiday. Living costs vary across the world, even in different regions of the same country. Food, accommodation and transport can be much cheaper than Sydney in many locations. There are a number of scholarships, grants and loans available to help cover some of your expenses.

4. Will spending a semester abroad delay my graduation?

You remain enrolled at the University of Sydney during your semester exchange. Your results for approved subjects are then credited towards your course at the University of Sydney once you have satisfactorily completed your mobility program. If planned carefully, semester exchange should not delay your graduation unless you go abroad in your final semester, which can delay graduation or progression into honours.

5. How long can I go abroad for?

You can complete one or two subjects in as little as two weeks in the winter or summer break or spend a semester or a full year overseas.

6. Can I go abroad if I am a postgraduate or international student?

Yes, both postgraduate and international students can go abroad. For postgraduate students, it is possible provided there is scope in your course and/or approved by your supervisors.

“Going on exchange was one of the best decisions I’ve ever made. It brought me out of the comfort of my sheltered life in Sydney and exposed me to so many different cultures through the people I met. Although it was challenging at times … I became much more independent and matured through finding my own solutions to problems.”

7. Do I need to know another language to go on exchange?
Many of our partners in non-English speaking countries across Europe and Asia offer a broad range of units taught in English, therefore you are not required to speak another language to attend. Check the Global Mobility Database to find out which partners offer subjects in English.

8. What kind of support will I get?
Sydney Abroad Advisers work with you during the application process to help you find an overseas program most suited to your needs. If you access student support services at the University of Sydney, it is important to ensure before you apply that your chosen program will offer a comparable level of support. Many short-term programs offer 'complete experience packages' with dedicated in-country support staff.

9. Do I need to find units of study that are an exact match of ones in my course?
One benefit of spending a period at an overseas institution is that you can access units of study that may not be taught at the University of Sydney. For example, at the National University of Singapore, a film studies major could take an elective on South Asian Cinema, which is not offered at the University of Sydney.
We have hundreds of programs in more than 40 countries and partner with top ranking universities worldwide.

Studying overseas is a unique opportunity to see the world and graduate with a truly global perspective. You can take just one or two subjects on a short-term program, go for a whole semester or even a year as part of your course.
