special circumstances has the meaning given in the Coursework Policy. At the date of these procedures that is:

for the purposes of late discontinuation under clause 92, circumstances which:

- were beyond the student's reasonable control;
- did not make their full impact on the student until on or after the relevant census date; and
- made it impracticable for the student to complete the requirements of the affected unit or units of study within the relevant teaching period.

Circumstances are beyond a student's reasonable control if a reasonable person would consider them to be:

- unusual, uncommon and abnormal; and
- not due to any action or inaction on the part of the student, and therefore not the responsibility of the student.

Note: For further information about how this definition is applied, see clause 92 of the Coursework Policy and clause 4 of these procedures.

4 Special circumstances

(1) Subject to clause 92 of the Coursework Policy, the University may grant a student late discontinuation of a unit of study where it is satisfied that:

- (b) the student's circumstances cannot, or could not, be addressed by other forms of special consideration or arrangements.

Note: See clauses 82, 83 or 84 of the Policy.

- (f) student, or a member of the student's immediate family, experienced financial difficulties;
- (g) changes made to the unit by the University or another higher education provider which resulted in new course requirements that are disadvantageous to the student;
- (h) an exacerbation, either in severity or duration, of circumstances for which:
 - (i) the student had previously been granted special consideration or arrangements; and
 - (ii) a faculty determines it is unsuitable to provide further or alternative forms of special consideration or arrangements; or
- (i) any other such circumstances that the University is satisfied made it unreasonable to expect the student to have completed the requirements for the unit.
