Associate Professors Julia Beatty and Vanessa Barrs

Our medicine team at the University of Sydney provides the best possible care for your cat. We have a long term commitment to improving the health and well-being for all cats through clinical research.

Our team, headed by Associate Professors Julia Beatty and Vanessa Barrs, has made major advances. In 2012, we discovered a serious infection of cats called Aspergillosis (A. felis). Our research forms the basis for international treatment recommendations for this disease. We also work on viruses causing cancer to develop better treatments.

We need your help to continue this important work. A tax deductible donation to this cause would ensure our research discovers clinical solutions sooner rather than later.

INFECTIOUS AGENT DISCOVERY IN CATS AND DOGS

Veterinarians are still faced with illnesses in cats and dogs for which the underlying cause is not known. For some of these diseases, an underlying infection is suspected. If we can identify novel infections in pets, then we will be much better able to effectively treat or even prevent these often devastating diseases. The aim of our team's work is to improve healthcare for cats and dogs into the future by characterising new and known infectious agents of our best friends. In doing so, we can determine optimal treatments and improve healthcare outcomes.

Please consider making a tax deductible donation to this important cause today.
